SCIENCE BEATS fiction, magic, spiritualism and many of the miracles. Science can perform its miracles every day in the presence of a crowd. Miracles of witchcraft, spiritualism, etc., require special light, special conditions.

Men in a flying machine can't hear each other. The roar of the motor prevents. But with the motor roaring a full mile above Central Park in New York, a flier talked into a transmitter.

STARTING a new religion today, and trying to attract attention, would require miracles most sensational.

England sends troops, battleships, cruiser flying machines, bare-legged Highlanders to the Sudan. That's a rich country, supplying raw materials, and wise Britain won't lose it. The Nile flows through the Sudan and Egyptians think they should control the Nile. But, with her flying machines, England will have her way.

The old days are gone when savages in the desert could defy civilization. Flying machines beat camels in crossing deserts.

THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION, distributing some of the Rockefeller millions, will spend $5,000,000 on a health institution in Japan. This enterprise, which may soften Japanese bitterness, will carry on in Japan work that the Rockefellers have begun in China, fighting disease, teaching people to take care of themselves.

FIGHTING DISEASE at its source is useful to the whole world. Plagues that strike Europe and America often have traveled from the East. Cholera and "Spanish" influenza, for instance.

ANOTHER WORK Mr. Rockefeller is doing, without perhaps thinking seriously about it. By decreasing Asia's death rate he is increasing the world's percentage of Asiatic population.

That five million dollar Rockefeller Institute in Japan may be represented by five million extra soldiers in a war of the East against the West 100 years hence.

HOWEVER, the Rockefellers, father and son, both deeply religious, probably feel that they can safely go ahead doing what they can to save human life, leaving the rest to Divine wisdom.

WHETHER PROVIDENCE plans to keep Asiatic and European populations balanced or not, it is certain that some disasters that hit Asia are above the helping powers even of the Rockefeller pocketbook. You read now of horrible floods in China, "thousands of villages underwater, ten million facing famine." All the Rockefeller money could not wipe out the effects of that single flood.

HOW MANY LIVES were lost by drowning, no one knows. Chinese statistics mean little. When they give China's population as four hundred million they mean four hundred million people of an age to work or be taxed. They pay little attention to the financially useless, very old and very young.

THE GREAT GOD Demos is influenced by little things. President Coolidge will show political wisdom if he denies the rumor that he is to watch a polo game with the Prince of Wales.

That expedition would cost votes with farmers who have trouble enough getting their ploughs, harrows and mowing machines over the ground without chasing a wooden polo ball over it.

Wearing a solemn black coat and black hat in the White House is the wisest thing President Coolidge can do from now until next November.

KLANSMAN ADMITS LOOTING OF CHURCH

Red Club Refutes Story of McCoy

CONFESSES LOOTING CHURCH

Klansman Caught in Cathedral at Burlington, Vt., Tells of an Anti-Catholic Plot

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 15.—An amazing Ku Klux Klan plot to pillage and burn the Roman Catholic churches of New England was disclosed today by the confession of one of the two klansmen under arrest for despoiling St. Mary's Cathedral.

He accuses William C. Moyers, a kleagle, of being the brains of the conspiracy.

Moyers, a Virginian, who came here not so long ago to organize for the K. K. K., is in flight. All roads are being watched for him. It is believed he is trying to slip into Canada.

The men held in Chittenden County Jail for the looting of the Cathedral are William L. McCreedy and Gordon Wells. Wells, who is 27 years old, and a traveling salesman, is the man who makes the confession.

SAFE ONLY IN JAIL.

Feeling runs so high here that friends of the accused men have made no effort to secure the $5,000 bail demanded for their release. They have an idea that the two thoroughly frightened citizens of the Invisible Empire are safer behind prison walls.

Wells tells a story that reads like a fantastic yarn from the Arabian Nights, instead of a true tale of today. It reveals almost incredible malignity, ingenuity and callousness.

So terrific an indictment of the Klan is it that the fugitive Moyers and the two klansmen under arrest have been repudiated by Kleagle Edward L. Rash, who is ranking Klan potentate in this section.

Frightened by the storm of censure which has arisen, Rash has hurriedly offered his assistance to the constituted authorities in capturing and punishing all the men implicated in the outrage.

He says that the plot was conceived by Moyers with the intention of stirring up public feeling and throwing the blame upon him.

A nabob of an empire that puts himself above the law, Rash has ordered his underlings to hunt for Moyers and bring him in. The two tools now under arrest are only "probationers," in Klan parlance. That is, they have not been given the de-

Coolidges Off For Brief Vacation in Vermont Today

Washington, Aug. 15 (Universal) — President Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge, and their son, John, will leave the National capital this afternoon at 2:05 for a two-weeks' stay at the home of John Coolidge, Sr., father of the chief executive, in Plymouth, Vermont.

So far as possible, the Plymouth trip will be a vacation for the President, the first he has had since he took office, more than a year ago.

The President plans to return on August 29 or 30. The Prince of Wales is to be an informal luncheon guest at the White House on the latter date.

VAHEY PLEADS FOR RAISE TO 'L' WORKERS

The only persons injured by the taking over of the Boston Elevated by the State were the employes, Attorney James H. Vahey declared today in his opening remarks before the wage arbitration board at the State House.

Referring to the demand of the union for an increase of 25 cents an hour over the present rate of 70 cents, Vahey maintained before Superior Court Judge John D. McLaughlin, the neutral member of the board, that the financial condition of the road is unimportant.

He accused the road officials of developing a "war foo for the men to fight in the form of the public. He reminded Judge McLaughlin that the employes of the road are also part of the public, yet, he said, an effort is being made to distinguish between them.

"These men," he continued, "would have been entitled to two weeks' vacation with pay if parts of the public control act hadn't been changed. As it is they have to work an unreasonable number of days and hours to get a decent wage, even on Sundays and holidays. It is unreasonable to expect men to raise families and get along on $5.60 or $5.34 a day."

"What we want is a wage rate per hour based on a six-day week for every employe of the road," he pleaded.

FLIERS TO TRY AGAIN SATURDAY

New Landing Place Is Chosen for American Airmen 15 Miles From Angmagsalik

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 15 (A.P.)—The American Army world fliers did not hop off for Greenland today owing to a new and better landing place for them having been discovered fifteen miles from Angmagsalik.

Marking out this new base and bringing to it the supplies from the supply steamer Gertrud Rask will occupy twenty-four hours. The Gertrud Rask cannot be moved to the new base, owing to the ice conditions. The supplies will be carried in rowboats.

Weather conditions were fine on the whole Iceland-Greenland route today.

BALANCE OF TRADE IS SLIGHTLY AGAINST U. S.

It was the first month that the balance of trade had been against the United States since June last year.

BAY STATE MENACED BY KLAN INVASION

This is the last of a series of articles on the Ku Klux Klan. Today the author indulges in a few generalities. He also tells what disgusted him with the order and caused him to write down these revelations.

By An Ex-Kleagle.
ARTICLE NO. 10

WHY did he leave the Ku Klux Klan?

That question probably has occurred to many readers of my articles concerning this order, which I joined not so long ago.

I think the biggest single factor in my change of heart has been the changing character of the Klan in New England.

Starting out with bombastic litany and high sounding catch words, it is degenerating.

Once or twice I have alluded to the differences between the Klan in the North and the Klan in the South.

Bear this in mind: These differ-

LETTERS CLUE TO WOMAN

Police Now Searching for "Mrs. Dillon" in Noble Murder Case

By BERT FORD

Search for a mystery woman witness named Mrs. Dillon has been started in the Somerville murder case following seizure of letters by the police at the home of Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, alleged slayer of his brother-in-law, David Merwin Noble.

The letters were discovered by officers who searched the Thiery home, No. 34 Central street, while the parents of the accused doctor were attending the funeral of their murdered son-in-law. They strengthen the motive created by the government.

One of these letters names Mrs. Dillon and makes mention of facts rather baffling to the police. Visits were made to homes in Revere and Allston in the hunt for Mrs. Dillon.

Another letter seized while the funeral service was in progress in the little chapel of Undertaker Wilson in West Somerville was that written to Mrs. William O. Thiery, mother of the alleged slayer, by Miss Edith Hurah of New York, classmate of Noble's wife at Wellesley College.

Dr. Thiery has retained Robert W. Nason of Nason & Proctor as counsel, and had a conference with him today.

THIERY USED DRUGS.

Coincident with the retention of counsel, it was announced that the Middlesex authorities would put several State witnesses under bond, holding their appearance before the Grand Jury.

FOUND IN AUTO HE DROVE

Witnesses Heard Screams in the Apartment Where Mrs. Mors Was Discovered

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—A blood-stained pickaxe handle, found in an automobile he used, lent its weight to the mass of evidence opposing Kid McCoy as he sat in a jail cell here today awaiting a coroner's inquest into the shooting of Mrs. Theresa Mors, divorcee, whose death resulted in McCoy's arrest on suspicion of murder.

The former pugilist and motion picture actor, whose true name is Norman Selby, also faced other charges—robbery and assault with intent to murder—growing out of an orgy of shooting in two Westlake district shops where he sought to find and kill Albert Mors, former husband of the dead woman.

FOUND IN CAR.

Those shooting affrays, the desire to kill Mors and the actual wounding of W. G. Ross, Sam Schapp and Ann Schapp, McCoy has admitted, but the shooting of Mrs. Mors he contends was suicide.

The police pointed out that there were cuts on Mrs. Mors' chest, forearm and lip, and bullet wounds in both arms. They revealed that a blood-stained pickaxe handle, and a clip of ten 32-calibre cartridges had been found hidden beneath the driver's seat of the automobile used by McCoy after the shooting.

In addition, they announced the discovery of witnesses who had heard screams issuing from the death apartment, followed by shuf-stician for Middlesex County who examined Dr. Thiery for the State of Massachusetts General Hospital on Thursday, announced that Thiery had admitted when questioned by him for several months of trouble in sleep.

ASST. DIST.-ATTY. BISHOP SAYS MOTIVE IS KNOWN

The young interne, in the opinion of Dr. Utley, had "experimented with nearly all drugs" before selecting ether to relieve nervousness and insomnia.

"Dr. Thiery told me that he used ether to produce sleep when undergoing a nervous spell or one evening of study," said Dr. Utley.

"He told me he would soak a towel with the contents of two 4 ounce cans, spread it over his face and lose consciousness.

"I find that no more probable experimented with nearly all drugs, but by his own admission he has been a constant user of ether for several months. Either that used acts much like liquor."

MURDER MOTIVE FOUND.

Assistant District-Attorney Warren L. Bishop said:

"This case has been referred to as a 'murder without a motive.' While it is not necessary to establish a motive I might state that in the Noble case the Commonwealth will present a motive overwhelming and compelling in its weight.

Other outstanding developments in the case today were:

Suspicion by the police that Dr. Thiery may have induced his mother to go with Eunice Noble, daughter of the victim, to Jaffrey, N. H., in anticipation of the crime.

Evidence that Dr. Thiery and his father discussed Noble's insurance policies and new will on the night of the murder.

Evidence that Noble, less than an hour before he was shot to death, discussed his insurance policies with Walter Hursh, his client and business associate, of No. 77 Avon street, Somerville.

Corroboration of Dr. Utley's statement that Dr. Thiery was an ether addict by members of the staff at the Massachusetts General Hospital and by the father of the accused who said Raymond used "Harbodoin" for sleeplessness after overstudy.

Evidence that the murdered realtor's four-year-old daughter, Eunice, was an unsuspected factor in the domestic discord that led to the tragedy.

Announcement by the hospital authorities that Dr. Thiery was recovering so rapidly that he would be discharged from the hospital by August 24.

Tentative plan to arraign Dr. Thiery in Somerville Police Court on August 25.

Middlesex County Grand Jury to consider case early September 2. District Attorney Arthur K. Reading will conduct the inquiry, and on or about September 15, in the event that an indictment is returned.

Dr. Thiery, regarded by several as friendly of the family as the "boss of some," while David Noble and his wife were living there and it is said that the doctor asserted many more unpleasant things about Louise Noble.

REALIZED MISTAKE.

Those who had business and social relations with David Noble assert that he early saw the mistake of sharing his home with his wife's parents. Certain domestic differences they say, could have been avoided if he and Louise had established their own home.

These witnesses say that Louise and David would have been spared alleged nagging and many disagreements if they had been in their own home.

Noble appears to have been on the point several times, following the death of his wife, of seeking a new home with Louise Thiery. It is said that he feared to make known such a plan to Mrs. Viola's grandparents, as he appreciated their fondness for Eunice.

Noble had spent much time playing Eunice on a motor boating school which she was a few years ago. He was planning to go to Nova Scotia with the child shortly, it is marked, "as Louise would want it," and are said never to have considered the possibility of living with the Thiery family.

The letter from Miss Edith Hursh was found among correspondence of Mrs. Thiery, another of the accused doctor. This letter was sent by Miss Hursh to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Walter Hursh, at No. 77 Avon street, Somerville, in an endorsed envelope addressed to Mrs. Hursh.

ASKED HER TO TELL HIM.

There was a note to Mrs. Hursh, written by her sister-in-law, telling her that she need not be alarmed. Mrs. Thiery and Dave to seal it in the other envelope and mail to Dr. Thiery's mother.

In a separate note to Mrs. Hursh, Edith Hursh, classmate at Wellesley, of Noble's wife requested that Mrs. Hursh tell Noble what the letter was about.

Edith Hursh explained that she had not asked Noble to attend Ball and feared that she might if she sent the reply to Mrs. Thiery's letter directly to the doctor's mother instead of to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hursh, to be relayed to the Thiery home.

Edith Hursh attempted in her letter to relieve Mrs. Thiery of her anxiety relative to David's habits following the death of his wife. Miss Hursh reminded Mrs. Thiery that David was young and naturally would have to seek company and diversion away from the Thiery home.

Miss Hursh also pointed out that David was exhilarant in his habits and that men did not always show grief over loss of a member of a family as women did.

CRITICISED DOCTOR.

It was learned today that Dr. Thiery's mother was overcritical over the death of her daughter Louise and that she felt that David and other members of the household did not seem to feel the sorrow she did. She mentioned this to friends on many occasions, they claim.

Mrs. Thiery was reported by intimates of the family to have criticised her son for not showing more grief over Louise's death and David Noble is said to have been criticised in a like manner.

Doctor Thiery is reported to have told his mother that he was schooling himself to forget his sister as dwelling on her death would not help her. Dr. Thiery further stated to his mother, according to the claims of friends, that he wished to banish from his memory, the suffering his sister had undergone during her five days of illness while he was treating her.

FATAL JOURNEY OF LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

Photographs are of two important witnesses whose evidence materially assisted the police to establish that burglars had not visited the Thiery home on the night that David M. Noble was shot to death.

Developments to Date in Somerville Tragedy

Here is a synopsis of the developments in the Noble murder:

David M. Noble, real estate operator, was shot dead Aug. 8 in the house at No. 34 Central street, Somerville.

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, his brother-in-law, was found in the cellar bleeding from superficial knife wounds. He said a burglar had killed Noble and attacked him.

Monday the Boston American found a witness who remembered that Noble told of being threatened by Dr. Thiery.

Monday night, following the discovery of an Austrian rifle with which the police allege Noble was slain, Thiery was arrested.

The police theory is that Thiery's motive was his dread that Noble would make a new will and he would lose trusteeship of the Noble property. He feared Noble would marry again.

Dr. Thiery's father has admitted that his son used drugs. Others have given testimony to the same effect.

It is all but certain that handwriting experts will be turned loose on the will of David Noble. It is possible that the body of Noble's wife, who died in April, will be exhumed.

Thiery is under guard at Massachusetts General Hospital. He will be discharged for arraignment in ten days or two weeks.

Judge Charges Plot By Holdup Victim and Prisoners

When two men held up James Green near his home on West Sixth street, South Boston, they got a dollar bill. Later one of them returned and snatched the dollar back, saying: "We thought it was a ten spot."

That was on August 9. In South Boston court today Miles McDonough, nineteen, of Vine avenue, Dorchester, and John Pillsbury, eighteen, of Dorchester street, South Boston, were arraigned, charged with being two of the bandits.

"I don't recognize them to my own satisfaction," said the complainant.

"I think you have reached an agreement with them and are trying to cover up," said Judge Day. He ordered the defendants held for the Grand Jury.

DR. THIERY IS IMPROVING RAPIDLY

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, accused of the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, is rapidly improving at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was operated on for an imaginary complaint.

His temperature today was normal, and he developed a good appetite, breakfasting at 8 o'clock. He said he felt in good spirits and is not worrying.

Dr. Thiery is in a small room in ward D overlooking Allen street. On the door of the room today was a placard bearing the warning: "Please do not disturb."

He is guarded constantly by Somerville police officers, Lacey and Raymond, who alternate night and day. Every person who enters the room is closely watched, and the officers even accompany the nurse when she supplies the bed.

OUT BY SUNDAY.

On a small table in the doctor's room today were two vases of flowers, said to have been sent him by Harvard Medical School friends. He also received a quantity of mail.

According to the present rate of improvement, Dr. Thiery will sit up Sunday, and will be out of the hospital possibly by the last of next week.

Present indications are that Dr. Raymond D. Thiery will be arraigned on the charge of first degree murder in Somerville Police Court, on August 25.

Announcement was made on Thursday at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was a patient and interne, that the accused was recovering so rapidly from Sunday's operation that he would be discharged from the hospital on August 24.

As the lower court has no jurisdiction, Dr. Thiery will be held until bail for the Grand Jury, which will consider his case on September 2. In the event of an indictment District Attorney Arthur K. Reading says that he will put the case ahead of everything else on the docket.

According to present plans the trial may begin as early as September 15. It will get under way by October 1, at the latest, according to a statement made by Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop, who was speaking for the district attorney.

FIND GIRL DRUGGED; EMPLOYER QUIZZED

Michael DeMarr of No. 63 Audubon road, Back Bay, was questioned by the police following the discovery that his twenty-year-old housekeeper, Miss Margaret Adams, had taken an overdose of morphine.

DeMarr told the police that he believed his young housekeeper was despondent over the loss of her purse and that she took the drug while suffering from melancholia.

8 HELD AFTER FATAL FUSILLADE AT FAIR

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 15.—Six men and two women were held under guard today, while posses were combing the woods for two others as a result of a shooting affray at the Tasley, Va., fair grounds in which one man was shot to death and a crowd of spectators cowed by a fusillade of shots as the principals in the affair escaped.

COURT OFFICER SPARGO TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

The funeral of Frederick Spargo, Municipal Court officer who died at his home, No. 65 Dracut street, Dorchester, will take place tomorrow from the First M. E. Church, Washington street, near Richmond street, Dorchester Lower Mills, at 2:30 p. m.

ETHER USED AS STIMULANT BY THIERY

Doctor Inhaled Large Quantity Each Evening to Induce Sleep

The admission by Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, accused of the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, that he is a ether addict, brings to light some interesting facts regarding the form of vice.

Dr. Thiery admits that he sometimes "sniffed" as high as eight ounces of ether during one evening.

According to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, eight ounces of ether as a drug is comparatively small beside the same effect as a quart of whiskey taken internally during the same length of time.

A FEW DRINK ETHER.

Ether "sniffers" smell the fumes of the drug until they are almost unconscious. Then they enjoy the exhilaration of the drug until it wears off, and they "sniff" again.

Physicians and nurses working about ether recognize the danger of burning the ether habit and a large majority are careful to keep away from the drug when off duty. A few, however, become addicted to its use and the physician accused of murder was one of these.

In extremely rare instances the hardened addict can drink the ether. One young Boston nurse has been picked up on the streets unconscious a number of times, after drinking ether.

ACTS AS STIMULANT.

The number of persons who use ether as a drug is comparatively small in the community, according to Dr. Leary.

The stupefying effects of the drug has precisely the same effect on the brain as would any highly stimulating drug or alcohol, and the addiction of Dr. Thiery to the use of the anaesthetic will likely figure prominently in his trial on the charge of slaying his brother-in-law.

Fascism Is Jingoism, Menace to Peace, Says Prof. Fay

Williamstown, Aug. 15.—Italian Fascism was attacked today by Prof. Sidney Bradshaw Fay of Smith College in an address to members of the institute of politics.

"Fascism," Professor Fay said, "is a kind of narrow minded jingoism which sees nothing but Italy's ambitions to become a great colonial power dominating the Mediterranean Sea."

Premier Mussolini's foreign policy was assailed as a "serious menace to the peace of Europe."

EAGLES OUT TO ADD 150,000 MEMBERS

Providence, R. I., Aug. 15.—Otto P. Deluse of Indianapolis, Ind., whose election as grand worthy prophets of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at the session now in the grand aerie session today, announced to that body that would endeavor to add 150,000 new members and double the order's insurance now in force to $12,000,000 during the coming year.

Reports of the auditing, insurance and organization departments by Federal Conrad H. Mann of Kansas City, Mo., and of the Bagles $75,000,000 campaign to get old age pension laws passed in ten States during 1924-25, by Frank E. Hering of South Bend, Ind., constituted the special order of business today.

Mann reported that the order had accumulated $12,000,000 additional assets in the past four years and that the order now has $18,000,000 liquid assets, which they had built up from nothing since the grand aerie passed a law in 1919 compelling 50 cents of every dollar paid in as dues to be set aside for sick and death benefit funds.

Loeb Thanks McCoy For Crowding Them Off Front Page

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Standing in the shadows of the gray steel bars of his cell, Richard Loeb today sent his thanks and best wishes to Kid McCoy, held in the Los Angeles jail.

"I don't know all the details of the shooting of Mrs. Mora," said Dicky. "For I didn't read all about it in the newspapers. But I did notice the story was on the front pages and had crowded out a lot of the story about our trial. That's why I say, Thanks to McCoy."

Ether First Used in Dr. Thiery's Own Hospital

It is a strange coincidence that ether, first given to the world as an anaesthetic at the Massachusetts General Hospital, should come back as a curse to a physician who is connected with that institution and may send him to the electric chair.

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, accused of the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, was a slave to the ether "sniffing" habit. He was attached to the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital, and is now a patient in that hospital under police guard.

In 1846, W. T. G. Morton, a Boston surgeon, gave the world its first knowledge of ether with successful demonstrations at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Dr. Morton patented ether under the name of "Letheon," and since those first demonstrations ether has been in general use as an anaesthetic throughout the world.

WIFE QUERIES BORDEAU ON RUM BILLS

Frank E. Bordeau will have to bare the innermost secrets of his life if he answers the 145 questions asked of him by his wife, Mrs. Marie E. Bordeau, who has filed the questions in Suffolk Superior Court.

The wife wants to know how much her husband spends each week for liquor, the name of his bootlegger and also the name of the pawnbroker through whom he is alleged to have pawned his wife's jewels.

Bordeau filed a suit in equity following his wife's effort to secure a divorce. The husband in his bill claims that his wife is holding property and funds rightfully belonging to himself.

DENIAL BY WIFE.

In her answer to Mr. Bordeau's bill in equity, Mrs. Bordeau denies his allegations and claims that he never earned enough money to support her and his son, Cyril, now sixteen years old, much less buy property. She also claims that he didn't work for several years.

The interrogatories include inquiries as to where Bordeau has lived since Nov. 1, 1922, and the street number of each address. He is also asked:

"Since November 1, 1922, have you paid anything to your wife for her support? If so, state how much you paid. Have you paid anything to your wife for the support of your son, Cyril? Have you paid anything for his education? If so, state to whom it was paid, when and how it was paid.

ASKS ABOUT GEMS.

"Have you at any time pawned articles of jewelry or other personal property belonging to your wife? If so, state what articles were pawned, with whom you pawned each article and what did you do with the pawn tickets?

"Have you pawned articles of jewelry or other property belonging to yourself? Have you at any time since your marriage in 1907 sold pawn tickets for goods pawned by you? If so, state when and to whom you sold the pawn tickets.

"Do you now spend at least $60 a week for intoxicating liquors? If your answer is in the negative, state how much you do spend each week for intoxicating liquors. Have you not owed for some time $40 to a bootlegger for intoxicating liquors? From whom have you purchased intoxicating liquors during the last two years, giving the names and addresses?

FIREBUG SETS SEVENTH BLAZE IN LOWELL

Lowell, Aug. 15—Fire Chief Edward F. Saunders and Everett W. Shumway of the State police today began an investigation of an incendiary fire at No. 21 Broadway, the seventh of its kind in this city in three months.

The fire was in a fruit and variety store.

It was reported that a man had been seen running away from the scene a few minutes before the fire was discovered.

7 HURT, 2 SERIOUSLY, AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—Seven men were injured, two of them seriously, when an Erie Railroad train struck a touring car at an unguarded grade crossing southwest of the city today. Vincent Coppola and Henry Kiefner of Buffalo may die.

A number of cars were halted by an approaching train. The driver of the wrecked machine swung out of line, either not seeing the train or attempting to beat it to the crossing. The car was carried 100 feet.

KLANSMEN PLOT TO WIPE OUT N. E. CHURCHES

gress, although even they are in reality in the K. K. K.

It is part of Klan usage for each man to deny they are Klansmen at all, as only a man in the order for about three years is called a Klansman in the Klavern.

Wells, in his confession, insists he was only a pawn in the atrocious game Kleagle Moyers was getting ready to play.

Moyers, he said, broached the subject of the spoliation of the Catholic churches of New England at a Klavern meeting held not far from Burlington. Before that, however, he had sounded Wells and McCready out, with wild tales of guns stored in the basements of Roman Catholic churches, and the imminence of a Catholic uprising.

They were sworn to secrecy, Wells tells the authorities, but were not told frankly what they were to do.

PILLAGE OF CATHEDRAL.

Then Moyers called them into secret conference and said that the campaign of evacuation of churches was to commence immediately. He said he had settled upon St. Mary's Cathedral because it was the shrine of Vermont Catholics, and was not thoroughly guarded.

Last Friday night Moyers, McCreedy and Wells armed themselves and proceeded to the cathedral. They got into the building and began piling up vestments, chalices, lamps candlesticks and silver plate.

Some of this property, considered sacred by the people who attend the stolen church, was destroyed. They had worked their way from the sacristy to the high altar when they were interrupted.

A church warden, citizens and police joined in the pursuit of the Klan, and McCreedy was captured not far from the cathedral.

Wells fled by automobile, separating from Moyers, according to his story. He was captured at Jericho last night and brought back to Burlington.

DENIES KLAN IN PLOT.

Kleagle Rash has denied that he or other officers of the Klan knew of the plot, or would have countenanced it. He maintains that Moyers, jealous of his authority, took the matter into his own hands, feeling against the Klan and making his position untenable.

In Burlington there is a feeling that the Klan must accept responsibility, in view of its complete control and its indorsement of the howl and robs.

State's Attorney Ezra M. Horton and Attorney General Graham have been in almost continuous conference since the arrest of Wells.

Moyers, the fleeing Kleagle, has been traced as far as Concord, N. H., but it is believed that he headed north again. Unquestionably the man wishes to get back to his home at Appalachian, Va., but he probably will not attempt the Canadian route in view of the hue and cry resounding through New England.

Moyers is about twenty years old, and married. He has been an organizing Kleagle since last May.

Wells, who makes his confession, is married, but living apart from his wife pending divorce proceedings. He has been employed by a big drug house here.

GERMAN REPLY PAVES WAY FOR ACCEPTANCE

London, Aug. 15 (I.N.S.)—A conciliatory reply to France's proposals for evacuation of the Ruhr was drawn up for presentation this afternoon by the German delegation to the Allied Reparations conference.

In some quarters it was said Germany's answer was "virtual acceptance" of the proposals. International News Service was informed, however, that the reply makes acceptance possible, but that further negotiations probably would be necessary before a final decision.

The Allied Reparations conference is a lengthy document. It was drafted after President Ebert had communicated the Gist of German political views to the Allied Premiers.

Berlin virtually placed responsibility for the reply upon the German Conference Delegation, but it is understood that the ministers in Berlin suggested counter proposals as a possible means of obtaining better evacuation terms for the Germans.

The Germans planned to ask France and Belgium to state their views on a similar proposal, to which Germany will reply. Germany considers her rights have been injured here, maintaining that separate Ruhr negotiations have not been conducted in the spirit of the conference.

However, the Germans had no alternative but, submit, announcing tentative acceptance under duress.

DREAMY WALTZ OF DAYS GONE BY IS COMING TO THE FRONT

FAVORED BY ALL DANCE MASTERS

Ban Put Permanently on the Suggestive "Bootleg" Steps of Present Time

The dreamy waltz has come back into its own.

The new movements to waltz music are the "Whisper Waltz" and the "Maytime Waltz."

This important piece of dancing news was brought home by Boston dancing teachers from the thirty-first annual convention of the International Association of Masters of Dancing at New York.

The world's two worst ways to dance were discovered and named. They are the "Bootleg dance" and the "Postoffice dance." They were condemned by the convention.

The bootleg dancer can be detected by his gay abandon, his suggestiveness and disregard of who's who in Terpsichore. He is the boy whose folks wouldn't buy his dancing less a ns, so he had to "bootleg" his ideas of that art from looser companions than his parents.

In passing, the association points a moral:

"People who have taken dancing lessons never dance suggestively."

The postoffice dancer is the boy who learned stepping by mail. He is good on paper but poor on wax. His correspondence clutch looks too much like rural free delivery for a fashionable ballroom.

Again the association triumphs: "Lessons by mail will not keep you from falling down on the floor."

From Edward S. Hurst, chairman of the Normal School Committee of the association, we have wise words on the waltz and the foxtrot, on dancing by mail and by music. Nice clean fun has come to stay in the dance, the chairman warns, and says: "Cleaner positions" are what we need, also better and slower music.

"I believe the reformers are justified in complaining of the dance today.

"People have been mixing whiskey with dancing for so many seasons that dancing has been corrupted.

"Many rich—suddenly, rich—people find they cannot be successful socially because they do not know how to dance properly. Dancing should be learned when young. If parents forbid lessons, the chance to learn clean dancing is lost and the child 'bootlegs' some steps from the neighbors, who may not be proper authorities."

Besides putting rhythm into the rich and placing everybody else in nice clean positions, the association has something new, it claims, in the way of perfectly grand grappling on the floor.

The newer movements to waltz music are the "Whisper Waltz," and "The Maytime Waltz"; for foxtrots, there are "The Chansonette," "The Oriental, "Mah Jong," "Raggedy Ann" and "The Pasadena."

The "Whisper" is a waltz done in a "half open movement. First you hold your partner this way and then that. "Comme ci, comme ca," as some people insist on saying.

The "Oriental" and the "Chansonette" are substantially the same foxtrot, Mrs. Anna Keenan of Philadelphia explained, except that the "Oriental" is for young folks who flatfoot it, and the "Chansonette" is "for elderly people over thirty" who hop around in the same figure furiously.

FIVE CHARGES AGAINST MAN IN BROCKTON COURT

Brockton, Aug. 15.—James J. Robertson, twenty-six years old, of Warren avenue, was held in $3,000 bail for a continued hearing when he appeared in District Court today, charged with attempted attack on a thirteen-year-old girl, breaking and entering two homes, stealing an automobile, driving an automobile without a license and with carrying a revolver without a permit. He pleaded not guilty to all charges.

'Loved Too Much to Kill Woman,' Says Kid M'Coy's Mother

THE "KID" AND CANDIDATE NO. 10 "TESTING"

They had their marriage license—he and Mrs. Jaqueline McDowall of Baltimore—and placed this seal of approval upon it outside the registry at Los Angeles. Something must have jammed in Cupid's ear, for the wedding never came off. Theresa Morse came into the picture somewhere with a cargo of love big enough to make the "Kid" willing to go out and try to kill her husband.

fling, scraping sounds and then silence.

SISTER'S STORY.

In support of McCoy's suicide version, however, was the statement by Mrs. Jenala Thomas that her brother was so overwrought when he rushed into her home early Wednesday morning and talked of the shooting that she did not believe he himself knew what had happened nor what he was saying.

An insanity defence will be set up by his attorneys.

District Attorney Asa Keyes tried to grill McCoy but the former pugilist refused to answer questions except as to his age. He admitted that he was fifty-one years old.

On advice of his attorneys McCoy remained dumb as the county official shot question after question at him.

Plans to prove McCoy insane took concrete form when Dick Farris, widely known promoter, announced he had arranged with the low firm of MacDonald and Thompson to defend McCoy. These lawyers were set the attorneys who accompanied McCoy to the district attorney's office.

Bogus Veteran With One Arm Arrested On Train

John Lakso, 37 years old, of Castle street, South End, in Municipal Court today was sentenced to State Farm for posing as a disabled veteran.

He was taken off a train at the North Station by police who said he was trying to sell a government ticket to Fitchburg.

Lakso also had a veteran's license to peddle, which was numbered 1053E and which he said was given him, with the ticket, by Charles Yokel, a friend in Fitchburg.

The man, who had but one arm, admitted he had never been in service and that he lost his arm as a result of blood poisoning. He appealed his sentence and was held in $500.

Los Angeles, Aug. 15 (Universal)—She sits huddled in her rocking chair in the little house on Moss drive, her shoulders drooping, her thin hands twisting together—"Kid" McCoy's mother.

She believes in her boy, believes in him absolutely, his mother whose boy is in jail while a woman lies dead and two men and a woman are wounded.

"I can't seem to think very well," she says in a tired voice. She is so weary of thinking and trying to understand, ever since the officers knocked at her door and told her that her boy was in trouble.

"But I know—oh, I know he didn't kill her. He didn't!"

The thin shoulders lift and she leans forward, putting her whole heart into her words.

"He couldn't have done it, he loved her too dearly. And she loved him, too."

From a pile of newspapers with their great headlines she is trying to find out what happened.

"Look," she says, "they say somebody heard a shot in her room at 2 a. m. yesterday. He wasn't there then—I know it, because he was here."

At 2 o'clock—if McCoy's story is true, and Mrs. Mors shot herself about 10 o'clock while he tried to stop her, it was four hours later he came to his mother.

FIRST THOUGHT OF MOTHER.

Where does a man's bewildered thought turn when he is in trouble and sorrow? "Kid" McCoy went to his mother.

"I heard his voice outside, under the window—I know his voice so well, my boy's voice.

"He said mother."

She had been expecting him all day and he came in the dark hours of the morning.

"He came in and put his arms around me.

"And he said: 'How's my mother?' He said nothing of any trouble. He just wanted to know how I was. And he said: 'What time is it?' and it was ten minutes to 2.

LOVED SLAIN WOMAN.

"He loved her so much. He used to tell me about it.

"'Mother,' he said, 'she's wonderful. She's the only woman I ever really loved. There's no one like her.'

"Yes, they were going to be married sometime—when they could. He never talked very much about Mors, but the wedding was going to be as soon as Mors had the divorce. And he loved her. He couldn't have killed her."

CHIEF PUNCHES OFFICER AND ARRESTS HIM

Holyoke, Aug. 15.—Chief James Peters of South Hadley Falls police department threw discipline to the winds and engaged in a fist battle on the main street of the town with Louis Peterson, a reserve officer of his own force.

After exchanging a round of cuffs with Peterson, the chief placed his subordinate under arrest and marched him to Town Clerk Madden's office for a complaint on charge of assault.

In the clerk's office the chief is alleged to have said that Peterson was drunk. The latter insisted that the town clerk smell his breath. Madden did so and then informed the chief he was mistaken.

Selectman Alfred S. Moody heard of the row and hotfooted it to the town clerk's office. He ordered both men back to duty at once, and as the selectmen are the supreme governing body, both officers immediately obeyed. No complaint was made out against Peterson, but the two will get a hearing before the selectmen Tuesday.

GIRL DODGES MUD SPOT, RISKS DIVE INTO RIVER

Springfield, Vt., Aug. 15.—Helen Gertrude M. Field of Cambridge, Mass., did not want to drive her new automobile through a mud puddle here, she risked going down a thirty-foot embankment into the Black river, according to State Inspector V. W. Greene.

Miss Field steered away from the puddle, and the front wheels went over the embankment. She had the car under control, however, and it was stopped before the rear wheels left the highway.

Deer Caught in Hyde Park; Found With Leg Broken

Hyde Park police today captured a deer on Huntington avenue, Hyde Park. The deer evidently had been struck by an automobile, for it was lying in the middle of the street with a broken leg. When the officers approached the deer attempted to run away, but fell repeatedly as it hobbled along on three legs. Finally the officers surrounded it and the deer was placed in the police ambulance and sent to the Angell Memorial Hospital.

REFUTES GLAND THEORY IN FRANKS CASE

Expert Testifies That Disorders of Loeb and Leopold Had No Bearing on Crime

Chicago, Aug. 15.—A very frank plea expert came into Judge John R. Caverly's courtroom today and did much to confound the theory advanced by the defence lawyers that it was the glands of Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., that led them to kidnap and kill little Bobby Franks.

Dr. Hollis T. Woodyatt, an endocrinologist, declared that the whole science of glands and their relation to the human mind and conduct was yet so unexplored that no one could say accurately what the glands consist of, or whether they had any effect on the conduct of an individual.

Dr. H. S. Hulbert, one of the leading alienists for the defence, testified that in the case of both of the young slayers many glands were not normal, in some cases over functioning and in other cases under functioning.

Dr. Woodyatt soon qualified as an expert. He had studied in Germany and held many degrees and posts of responsibility. He used "basal metabolism" in his business a great deal, he said. Defence alienists made much of the fact that Leopold's basal metabolism was low, and on one occasion showed 17 minus.

DIFFERENT RESULTS.

Dr. Woodyatt described at length what physical condition a patient should be in to get the most accurate estimate of his basal metabolism, how no food should be consumed for several hours, how there should be a period of absolute rest and relaxation.

"Would not the same person show different results under different conditions?" asked the State attorney.

"Yes."

"Emotion would influence the results obtained?"

"Yes."

So far as basal metabolism of 5 per cent. minus is concerned, which was the defence figure in the case, Dr. Woodyatt declared that "was a normal variation" and of no significance. The 17 per cent. which Leopold showed was not much more important in the opinion of Dr. Woodyatt. It all depended, he said, on the conditions surrounding the test.

"ALL NORMAL," HE SAYS.

The State's attorneys described in all their technical details the various blood tests, carbon dioxide tests and "chemistry of character" tests conducted by the defense alienists of Leopold and Loeb, and in a majority of these, Dr. Woodyatt said, the findings were generally those of normal persons.

A good deal depended, he said, on the accuracy of the tests, but in any event none of the findings in the Leopold-Loeb examinations showed any abnormal or alarming symptoms.

Concerning acidosis for instance, which the defense alienists said affected Leopold, Dr. Woodyatt declared that "all normal persons have acidosis to a greater or lesser degree at some time."

Dr. Woodyatt agreed that the blood pressure of "Dicky" and "Babe" was lower than the ordinary, but he said that perfectly normal, healthy persons had low blood pressure. Such a pressure, he said, could be caused by nervousness and emotion.

The State's attorneys asked Dr. Woodyatt to assume that the Loeb-Leopold blood pressure was low, that their basal metabolism was low and all of the other medical fact produced by the defense doctors, "would that indicate any disease of the endocrine gland system?"

ENTIRELY NORMAL.

"It would not," asserted Dr. Woodyatt.

"Is there anything in these findings I have read to you that is incompatible with entire normality?"

"No."

The State's attorneys asked Dr. Woodyatt to describe present day knowledge of the glandular system. He did so technically with triple jointed words.

He said that so far as the pancreatic glands or islands are concerned, it had been shown that these glands were entirely removed from the body, it would still be possible to inject insulin and keep the body functioning normally.

FLEEING MAN CAUGHT AFTER SHOE ROBBERY

Peter Zebroskey, twenty-two years old, of Rosemont street, Dorchester, was captured by police after a chase of a quarter of a mile today, following a robbery at the shoe store of Max Swarts, 276 Dorchester avenue, South End. Sergeant Harvey and Patrolman Hoban of the Lagrange street station saw Zebroskey leave the store with a big bundle under his arm. When he refused to halt the officers gave chase. The fugitive threw the bundle away, but the officers caught him. The bundle contained four pairs of shoes. A padlock was smashed to gain entrance to the store.

She aroused two men who among those forced to flee.

Her screams attracted several pedestrians, who aroused the tenants. The fire spread through an airshaft and several apartments were destroyed before the fire was gotten under control.

BOY PRISONER BREAKS OUT OF CELL

Pries Bars Loose at Station 10 and Makes Good His Escape

Harry Houdini's feat performed several years ago, of escaping from a cell, has been duplicated by a 16-year-old youth, very much to the chagrin of the police of the Roxbury Crossing police station.

The boy, arrested for shoplifting, in some manner pried apart the bars of his cell, then pried apart the bars of the window in the cell room and made a clean getaway. All this was done while the station guard-room, above the cell room, was filled with policemen and while Captain Jeremiah A. Gallivan was in the building.

BOOKED FOR LARCENY.

The police are convinced the boy pried apart the bars with some mechanical device, but what it was they do not know.

The boy was arrested when a floorwalker at the department store of Timothy Smith & Co. saw him pilfer a number of silk shirts. Patrolman Catarino was called and the youth was booked on the charge of larceny.

He was placed in Cell 8 in the basement of the police station.

FIRST IN 50 YEARS.

Four hours after the boy was locked up, the wrenched bars were discovered. A general description of the boy has been sent to the police throughout the city in an effort to recapture him.

In fifty years, according to police officials, it is the first escape of a prisoner from a Roxbury Crossing station house cell.

HUGHES SHAKES DIGNITY AND LEADS CHEER

Official Washington Gets New View of Austere and Cold Secretary of State

Washington, Aug. 15.—Secretary Hughes came back to his desk at the State Department today—but it was not the same Hughes who went away a few weeks ago for a tour of Europe as president of the American Bar Association. In some mysterious way Hughes had lost a considerable part of the austerity and the atmosphere of coldness that has marked him.

There were at least 2,000 persons in the Capital who bore witness to that fact today. They got the surprise of their lives last night at the Coolidge notification ceremonies, and they will be telling the story for the next decade.

Secretary Hughes was sitting on the platform along with other Cabinet members and government officials. The president had entered Continental Hall, going direct to the platform where no way to speak. There was handclapping, but no extraordinary enthusiasm.

Suddenly, the dignified, bearded and aristocratic perfect American Secretary of State was at the edge of the platform, leaning over in somewhat of the attitude of a college yell leader. The handclapping almost ceased as the crowd gazed in surprise, and then Hughes yelled:

"Three cheers for President Coolidge."

The audience, quick to catch and join in his enthusiasm howled madly while Hughes waved his arms and stamped about the platform. It was all over in a minute and a half, but in that brief time Hughes had stepped from his old role of unbending austerity, and had taken a new place in the estimation of official Washington.

After the meeting he went to the White House with the President to look at some talking movies of the notification, and there were some there who thought it perfectly natural to slap him on the back, to call him "Charlie," and to welcome him back among them.

It was a new Hughes.

Mrs. Walter Tufts, Jr., Equally Adept With Pen and Brassie

The popular Brookline dancer was the cynosure of many eyes when she appeared at the Newport Casino the other day.

By BETTY ALDEN

WHETHER she is wielding a pen or a brassie, Mrs. Walter Tufts, Jr., is equally deft.

One of the shyest and most melodious shows ever put on by the Vincent Club was presented last Spring, "Wake Up" was its name, and Mrs. Tufts collaborated with Miss Suzette Sturgis to write it.

If the former Faith Simpkins is endowed with considerable musical talent, she is also an excellent golf player. In fact, I note that she is one of the forty-seven women golfers who are on the Boston Association's eligibility list for the annual championship. Only those handicapped at 8 or under are entitled to enter.

Mr. and Mrs. Tufts and their young family have recently become members of the year-round colony at Beverly Farms, and Mrs. Tufts is practically a daily player on the links of the Essex County Club at Manchester.

On Monday the tournament among women golfers for the Stevens cup will open at the Essex County Club, with the former Miss Simpkins as chairman of the golf committee. The matches will be open to women members of the Myopia, Tedesco, Kernwood, Salem and Essex County clubs.

to return to "Princemere" in the Fall. To keep track of the comings and goings of the Princes would be quite a task, for hardly have they arrived in one of their homes, than —presto!—they leave for the other.

Trans-Atlantic crossing seems to mean very little in the life of Mr. Prince. While he and Mrs. Prince are at Pau, he thinks nothing of sailing across the "big pond" for just a week's stay in Boston and then returning to Pau.

Another Boston couple who flit across the Atlantic with great frequency are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene, of Chestnut street, who are, I believe, just now enjoying a sojourn on the other side.

This Summer the Greenes have been occupying "Willow Gate," the Honiton Wilder place at Manchester. Formerly they have been at Wayland, where their place is known as "Greenways."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan have as guests at their shooting lodge in Scotland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele of New York, who are sailing for New York on September 3.

Justice and Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes whose Summer place is in Beverly Farms, have been spending a few days in New York at the Ambassador.

Mrs. Howard G. Cushing, Gould Shaw and William H. Vanderbilt were members of the tennis committee which conducted the dance held the other evening at the Newport Casino in honor of the visiting players. About 200 attended the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Disston of Philadelphia, have with them at their Summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mr. and Mrs. F. Warren Marshall of St. David's, Pa.

Mrs. Charles H. Howry of Washington is spending the remainder of the season at the Oceanside in Magnolia.

Mrs. Robert W. Knowles is also eligible for the national championship.

Mrs. Knowles, who is spending the Summer at Manchester Cove with Mr. Knowles, in one of the cottages at "Sharksmouth," reigned as leader of the fair Vincentites during the past year.

Most any fair day in the Spring or Fall will find the former Amy Thorp playing on the links at the Country Club. Now, of course, she uses the Essex County course.

Other members of Boston's fashionable world who are entitled to play at the Rhode Island Country Club next month are Mrs. Samuel M. Felton 3rd, Mrs. R. M. Gardiner and Miss Theresa Winsor.

Polo is still holding the attention of the North Shore colonists.

The rain held up playing for a few days, and the opening match of the series for the New England Circuit Cup in the Dedham-Myopia tournament was scheduled to be played yesterday afternoon at the Myopia club field.

The final match will probably be played tomorrow at "Princemere," which reminds me that the master and mistress of this splendid estate recently left the Shore for another of their frequent sojourns on their Winter estate at Pau, France.

The Princes spent all last Winter at Pau, but I believe that they are

Love Conquers Over Promises of Beauty to Quit Actor for Good

New York, Aug. 15 (Universal)—Imogene Wilson has packed her little grip and is off for England.

Love is stronger than oaths and promises, it seems, for Miss Imogene promised she would see no more of Frank Tinney, but has journeyed.

Miss Wilson "Follies" girl, whom Flo Ziegfeld turned out in to the cold world because she would not keep away from the black-faced comedian who spanked her, left for Canada, according to one of their close friends, and will sail from Montreal on the Empress of China.

Dear Frankie, according to a mutual friend, found that when he got to England he could not do without his "Bubbles" and has asked her to come to him. It was Tinney's lawyer who got her a passport under her own name.

'WATCH COP' POSTERS MAKE HIT IN LYNN

Hundreds Posted by Newsboys Around City With Permission of Police

Hundreds of slippings from the Boston American of the facsimile of the prize winning safety poster of Wilbur G. Dickinson, of Lynn, published in connection with the American's I PLAY SAFE Club campaign, are posted in downtown sections of Lynn.

Police gave the Roosevelt Newsboys' Association, members of which are pals of fourteen-year-old Dickinson, special permission to post the "Watch the Cop" signs on telephone poles, fire hydrants and public buildings.

Mayor McPheters placed two of the designs clipped from copies of the American, conspicuously in the windows of his store on South Common street.

All copies of the editions of the American which bore the facsimiles of the poster drawing were sold, the newsstands being wiped clean of Americans. Police, praising the American's campaign, which aims to protect the lives of children, as they themselves do in their own duties, were among the last customers.

Five million copies of the prize-winning poster of young Dickinson will be distributed audibly all over the United States at the opening of schools in September.

TRAFFIC JUDGE JOINS 'I PLAY SAFE' CLUB

David A. Lourie of Municipal Court Loud in Praise of American's Drive

The Boston American's "I Play Safe" Drivers' Club, already heartily endorsed by Governor Cox, Mayor Curley and many other prominent officials in the city and State, was today praised by Judge David A. Lourie of the Municipal Court of Boston as a step toward safety which may mean the saving of many lives.

Judge Lourie, before whom cases of violations of the motor laws are heard every day, exhorts drivers of automobiles to exercise greater care, thought and concentration in their driving.

Judge D. A. Lourie

Upon the windshield of his own automobile, he has placed an emblem signifying his membership in the Boston American drivers' club. His letter follows:

The Boston American is undertaking a thoughtful, necessary campaign in getting automobile drivers to sign a pledge to live up to the rules of the roads.

Anything that is done to awaken the consciences of motorists is a step toward greater safety. You cannot tell how many lives may be saved by this campaign for safety.

Drivers must co-operate to help make the roads safe. The police and the courts must be strict with major violators of the traffic laws until they see that the drivers are co-operating with them.

LEARN TO CONCENTRATE.

"I handle many traffic cases in the municipal court of Boston. I try to go into the merits of every case to find the reason for the alleged violation of the law. I have found that recklessness is usually due to thoughtlessness and carelessness. Drivers must learn to concentrate on their driving. They must keep their minds firmly, determinedly, everlastingly on what they are doing.

I will place a Boston American "I Play Safe" Emblem on the windshield of my automobile to help spread "play safe" idea. I wish to commend you on the device; the driver who sits at the wheel behind an "I Play Safe" will have a tendency to drive carefully. Beside that, other drivers, seeing it, will also take heed.

Drivers ought to give the other fellow the right of way. It is required by law. It is courtesy and fair play. Don't rush ahead, at the risk of lives and limbs, and usually in a hurry that is unnecessary, as well as unlawful.

NEED LESSON.

I find that usually once a lesson is brought home to a heedless driver, by arraignment in court and the legal penalty, he does not offend again. If we can, however, bring the lesson home to drivers before it becomes necessary to take them into court, it is so much better.

Sincerely yours,

DAVID A. LOURIE.

COOLIDGE FOR NEW CUT IN ARMAMENT

President in Acceptance Speech Advocates Aid for Farmers

Washington, Aug. 15.—Prosperity as home and peace abroad were the fundamental principles expounded by Calvin Coolidge in formally accepting the Republican nomination for President.

President Coolidge spoke before a comparatively small audience in Memorial Continental Hall, after listening to the notification address of Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, chairman of the notification committee.

In a characteristic address dealing with short sentences, the President reviewed the accomplishments of the administration since 1921, outlined its future policies, and declared economy would be the watchword.

He spoke of the huge savings that have been effected by the administration, told of what has been done for disabled veterans, and touched lightly on the immigration exclusion act and the trouble with Japan.

WHAT COOLIDGE FAVORS.

Among the things he favored were:

Protective tariff.
Another Washington conference for further limitation of armaments.
Honest government.
Reduction of taxation.
Permanent Court.
Peace in Europe.
American plan of reparations.
Appointment of a committee to find means of aiding farmers.
Economy in government and taxation.
Enforcement of prohibition.
Child labor laws.
National defense.

Referring to possible opposition party issues, the President said the government was sound, and wrongdoers would be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

PAST WAR PROBLEMS

Referring to the problems which the present administration had to party issues, the President said the condition of the country in March of 1921 made an impression upon the people "no deep, so vivid, so alarming, that it will not soon pass away."

He said that over two years after the armistice we were still technically in a state of war, and that "a reckless extravagance had come to characterize the administration of public affairs and was all too prevalent in private life."

A huge debt had been contracted, demobilization and liquidator remained to be completed, and huge accounts with the railroads were still unsettled. The whole people were suffering from a tremendous deflation.

"Perhaps in no peace-time period have there been more remarkable and constructive accomplishments than since March, 1921," he said.

He referred to the many foreign treaties that have been ratified and said, "Our foreign relations have been handled with a technical skill and a broad statesmanship which has seldom, if ever, been surpassed."

SAVINGS THROUGH BUDGET.

He spoke of the budget system, which resulted in tremendous savings, and stated that more than 40 per cent. of the amount of debts due us from foreign countries has been liquidated.

Taking up the relief of disabled veterans and the Veterans' Bureau the President said more than 71,000 men and women have been rehabilitated, of whom over 25,000 are earning more than they earned before the war.

Compensation is being paid to nearly half a million at the rate of about $100,000,000 a year, which will be increased about $30,000,000 under legislation recently passed. Forty million dollars have been provided for hospital facilities, he said, and hospitals have been opened to all veterans of all wars.

Mr. Coolidge declared the protective tariff had saved American agriculture, labor and industry from the menace of a flood of foreign products dumped on the home market. As a source of revenue he said the tariff surpassed all expectations, producing an annual return of the unprecedented sum of about $550,000,000.

BOOTLEGS FLEE IN FUSILADE OF BULLETS

Two Captured in Brockton Chase Had Alcohol Cargo in Car

Brockton, Aug. 15.—A tip received by the police from reliable inspectors to a party on Pleasant street near Oak Cemetery, that it was to contain rum, caused users at work.

Two hand real automobiles park- ed in the yard and four men who immediately dropped from them and ran in different directions. Several machine guns were fired at them by the policemen, one of the shots struck a car which was driven away by a fourth man, presumably the proprietor of the garage.

The officers succeeded in capturing Bootlegger Michael Pantos, owner of No. 19 Commercial street, and Peter Dorty, who is at No. 24 Commercial street.

The police found only a small quantity of alcohol in a false top in the car. The remainder of the contents was water.

MISSING MEDFORD BOY SOUGHT BY MOTHER

Fortified against the elements by a travelling bag containing an extra suit and a couple of suits of underclothing, and with twenty cents in his pocket, seventeen-year-old Donald G. Howland of No. 4 Bostonian avenue, Medford, left home a week ago and has failed to return.

Donald Howland (Photo by Champlain Studio)

He has been taking dancing lessons for the past three years and friends believe he may have applied for a position on the stage. His widowed mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Howland, however, believes he may have gone to some country place to obtain work on a farm. Donald is five feet, ten inches tall, weighs about 130 pounds, and wore a gray knicker suit and gray soft hat. He has a scar behind his left ear three inches long.

MEASURE THE EFFECT OF TICKLER

Bureau of Standards Finds a Way to Calculate Regenerative Interference

The Bureau of Standards at Washington has devised a method of calculating the amplification produced by the "tickler" method of regeneration. This discovery, in the opinion of experts, marks another milestone along the road to a perfect radio receiving set.

"The amplification of radio signals by regeneration in electron tube circuits is well known," said the Bureau of Standards in announcing the discovery.

"However, very few quantitative data have been available on the amplification produced by this method of regeneration.

"By means of a simple alternating current theory an equation has been derived from which the amplification produced by inductive feedback can be calculated. This equation shows that regeneration can be considered as producing a reduction in the resistance of the tuned circuit and also increasing the current. The equation derived was completely verified by experiment."

An unusual feature about the discovery is that a woman participated actively in the experiments. Dr. C. B. Jolliffe and Miss J. A. Hodman, of the Bureau of Standards, are given credit for the discovery.

Another step is being taken by the government which, it is believed, will eventually lead to the standardization of all radio equipment. The Bureau of Standards is conducting a series of tests to determine the most acceptable types of dry cells for use by government purchasing officers.

BRYAN SPEECH FROM KFKX NEXT MONDAY

Bryan of his nomination for vice president will be broadcast next Monday by KFKX, Nebraska, from the University Stadium at Lincoln where the ceremonies will take place. Plane Broadcast to Be Repeated by WJZ

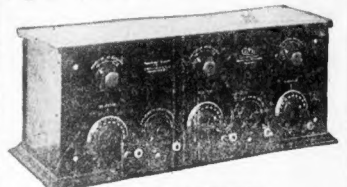
New York, Aug. 15.—In order that the vast army of radio fans who are able to listen in only in the late afternoon or evening may enjoy the unusual experience of hearing an aviator broadcast from the sky, plans were discussed today to repeat the successful tests along this line made by Lieutenant Brandt and Lieutenant Rasch of Mitchel Field.

Hearing a mile above Central Park in the Haviland plane, the aviators spoke into a microphone and their voices, mingled with the roar of the big Liberty motors, were picked up by remote control and amplification apparatus and broadcast through Station WJZ. It was said to be the first time an aviator's voice was successfully broadcast from a moving plane.

Broadcast listeners and experimenters who were on the air at that time were amazed at the clarity of the transmission.

THIS IS FOR YOU WHEN YOU WIN THE CONTEST



COTO-COIL RECEIVER

It is the very latest in tuned radio-frequency, there being one stage of r. f., detector and two of audio. We chose it to give to the lucky dog who gets the largest number of puzzles correct because:

It has a rejector which acts like a wavetrap, yet doesn't cut the volume and may be switched out anyway by half a turn of the dial.

The radio frequency and rejector circuits are on the panel. The tubes are mounted behind on a grounded metal plate which bends over to form a shield behind which nestle the audio-frequency transformers. This prevents interaction between the radio and audio circuits.

In Providence it has pulled in KGO, Oakland, Calif., while WSAI, Cincinnati, three meters less, was going.

On the Air Last Night

By THE LISTENER

The radio atmosphere was almost entirely devoted to the notification ceremony of President Coolidge, broadcast from Washington, D. C. Powerful broadcasting stations covering the entire United States were linked together by means of the big distance telephone circuits, enabling each word of the President to be heard clearly in every nook and corner. To those who have followed radio development for many years and had long ago sensed its possibilities—last night must have marked an important milestone. We realize what such a system of communication would have meant in Abraham Lincoln's day! It makes one wonder if the Civil War would have lasted so long, or even existed in the first place.

The voice of Graham McNamee came through with its usual splendid clarity. During the notification ceremony broadcast from Clarksburg, West Virginia, the other night, McNamee's voice was clearer than any of the speakers. Last night, from Washington, it seemed also the case, excepting that the voice of the Republican speakers were somewhat clearer than the speakers at Clarksburg, on the Democratic ceremony.

The words of Frank W. Mondell, chairman of the Republican National Convention at Cleveland, came through with surprising clearness. His voice seemed with sincerity and was entirely void of "oratorical fireworks." There is little doubt as to how this method of speaking "gets across" with the radio audience. Many speakers appear to forget that a radio audience can hear but cannot see. This leaves them free to concentrate upon the words, and the dress suit, high collar, and any manner in which they may be attired. A dress suit, high collar, and an affable manner have no effect on the radio audience. Even the words themselves may be unimpressive. The man wearing the earphones looks right into the heart of the speaker, and although the speaker might not realize it, he is being subjected to such scrutiny as would be virtually impossible under any other circumstances.

The applause accompanying President Coolidge's introduction was deafening. His words were clear and easily understood. Applause marked almost every passage of his speech, not on account of the oratory manner he possessed, there is little doubt but what his words were understood by everyone.

There seemed but little else on the air, from any direction. I heard one or two stations broadcasting musical programs, but they were weak and far off—possibly Canadian stations. It is a safe bet that nearly every person in the United States was listening to "Their President" last night.

YOUTHS CAUGHT IN CAMP PUT BLAME ON GIRL

Worcester, Aug. 15.—A strange story of how a girl led them into a Lake Quinsigamond cottage via a second story window, and how through another window then the Shrewsbury police arrived, failed to convince Judge Frank L. Riley in District Court when Martin Dwyer, twenty-two years old, his brother, Edward, twenty years old, and Albert Green, nineteen years old, were arraigned on charges of breaking and entering. The three were ordered held in $200 bonds each until tomorrow.

Broadcasting of Jazz Is Problem

By VINCENT LOPEZ.

The selection of programs is one of the hardest parts of successful broadcasting, for musical numbers that are uniformly pleasing on the dance floor are often failures when thrown "on the air."

For broadcasting purposes I have found it necessary to use arrangements that are "full," i. e., in the progressions of chords that go to make up the harmony, every note in every chord should be played, or the chords as they will stand out more prominently than those notes which are emphasized.

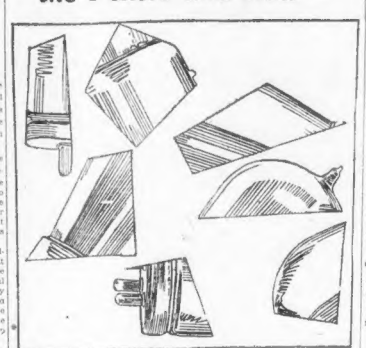
It frequently is necessary to modify the expression greatly from what is ordinarily used. When the trumpets, which have heavy tonal quality, have a forte passage they must be held down to what would be deemed mezzoforte, as otherwise it is almost impossible for the broadcasting technician to keep within the right degree of volume.

These broadcasting experts are guided in their control of volume by a dial the hand of which is supposedly actively sensitive to "weight." During the program this dial is under the constant supervision of the technicians.

While I am a sincere admirer of classical music, I do not consider it as appealing to the largest number, and modern jazz, as rendered by the best dance bands, is an educational medium of great importance. My music is especially arranged by men of unusual ability, and is of a character that cannot be scorned by the most fastidious purist.

Most classical music is of too solemn a tone to be popular.

Northy Plunked $9.35 on the Ponies and Now---



PUZZLE NO. 15

We no sooner got Northumberland straightened out after his adventures with the girl in the red bathing suit that he went to following Moe and Joe over on the sports page.

Then, while we were sorting yesterday's answers, he borrowed a week's largess from the paymaster and dropped it all on Lemon Squeezer in the third race.

Northy proved to be the lemon, so now he's broke. You can see for yourself. We're relying on you to help get him together once more.

"We're sorry to harp on our domestic troubles so much, but we think we better remind you that answers to these puzzles have got to be in before the answer is published, or at least the postmark must show that the answer was mailed before then. If you can fix it up with the postman to set his date stamp back, why that's your luck. If you are not that lucky, better get 'em in on time. Already we've had to rule out several that came in late.

And as for prizes—

First, Coto Coil four-tube set (picture published today), second, Amerflex Kitset; third, choice of pair of Como push-pull transformers or Trinity loud speaker; fourth, Peerless Twin-And; fifth, Sir-Ar-De audi transformer; sixth, General Radio 500-mfd. variable condenser with vernier gear; seventh, Peerless Kondenser Kit; eighth, pair of Towers' earphones, and ninth, National four-inch Velvet Vernier dial.

ELECTION BOARD TO INCREASE REGISTRARS

The Board of Election Commissioners, in anticipation of heavy registration of voters, proposes to increase the evening force of outside registrars for today's four real istrars in each of the registration places.

They feel that the large registration last night will warrant this extra additional force.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO PARLEY IS URGED

A. R. A. Wants Reassignment of Marine Wave Lengths to Stop Broadcast Interference

An international radio conference to take up the question of reassignment of marine wave lengths so that ship code will not interfere with broadcasting is now being sought by the American Radio Association in New York.

The large number of foreign ships entering the New York harbor and passing through the Sandy Hook complicated the matter of code interference in that city.

The association has taken up the matter with C. J. Pannill, vice-president of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company. This was the company which just some time the request of the Boston American that its shore stations refuse to accept traffic on 450 meters

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meheriin

Boston Girl's Impassioned Love Story and Her Struggle to Live It Down and Come Back

JAKE came over with a rollicky light in his eyes. He took Chickie's hands and surveyed her from head to foot. He said, hunching his head in his cosy way: "Helena! Blue and white." And he seemed immensely tickled as though this were a picnic or a capricious whim of hers.

"Now git your hat, will ye, and we'll off for a canter and see what all this may be about."

Chickie was aware of intent eyes from the rooms adjoining and from the stairs where girls were passing. Jake, too, was aware of this—the handsome face had a gay, challenging look.

Chickie said: "I shouldn't go out the first night. I'm to study, you know."

"Begin tomorrow. I'll take you for a run out to your darling Jonathan. How's that?"

She ran back to her room. Myrtle was sitting there waiting. She said: "He doesn't happen to be your brother, does he, Bryce?"

"No."

"Going out?"

"Just around the block"—

"Give him my love, will you?"

Chickie only put on her coat, not stopping to change her uniform. This was the first time Jake noted when they were sitting in the car. He said: "Are you that proud of it, Helena, my dear?"

"Oh, I am, Jake! I feel happy today—glorious."

"How long do you intend to stay at it?"

"Three years. That's the course."

"Do you mean to tell me that you're going to make a prisoner of yourself for the next three years?"

"I don't look at it that way—"

"Why, my dear, I'd as lief send you into a nunnery, Liefer! There you'd only have to [illegible] Here you'll scrub and what not!"

"You don't know anything about it, Mr. Jake."

"Nor do you. Do you think this is what you want from life, my dear?" "Oh Jake—what do you want from life is what you want from my life! I tried that, didn't I?"

He had been laughing. Suddenly his face sobered. He slowed the car and looked at her searchingly. She smiled and touched his hand.

Jake's Offer

"Yes—I tried that, Jake. You see what happened. So now—well—oh, this seems quite glorious to me—"

Jake's eyes were warm and glowing, but the red mouth was white. He took his hand from hers and then he put it back and pressed hers hard between the two of his.

"Do you mean to bury yourself, Helena?"

"Ho—they tell me I'm to find myself."

"What are you to find? Do you even know what you want?"

They had driven out northward. For sweeping under a ripe gold moon, the ocean stretched.

It was a blue, still night. Down the bluff and just at their feet, an abandoned jetty gave a touch poetic yet desolate to the scene.

Chickie sat a little forward, her hands clasped in her lap. Jake made aplace for her with his arm. She mused at the ease of this; the quiet way their old relationship revived.

"How far away from everything we seem—"

Jake watched her intently. He repeated: "Do you even know what you want, Chickie?"

For moments she pondered, her profile turned towards him. And, touched as it was with the white, wistful eagerness; with this new, pathetic fervor, awakened in Jake a piercing tenderness an immense and challenging desire. She talked softly and her voice shone. "Are you trying to make me think of things that are finished, Jake?"

"What can be finished at 22?"

"Almost 23. I'll tell you what is finished. It's this: The time when I can say what I want or even think about it. For now I have to take what I can get, and it doesn't at all matter whether this is what to be what I might like —just that I can be of use—"

"Who told you that?"

"I know it."

"You do, do you! So you mean to put Helena Bryce into a nursery and run her off without a penny's pleasure? For what, my dear?"

A Low Laugh

She gave a low, uncertain laugh, shaking a little shyly. "I thought you'd be quite thrilled about it, Jake. Why, I thought you'd say I was a very noble being!"

He looked down with a kind, ironic smile. "How did you misjudge me like that, Helena dear, and Life and I such chums? You mean to climb on a martyr's pyre and you think I'll bring the torch to light it? I love Life far too much to see the beauty of denial.'

"Then you don't believe in service? Not at all?"

"I do, indeed. You can serve best by taking your due of all the fine and happy things. I've told you that. It's little short of suicide for you to kill the youth that should be yours."

She was vaguely disappointed, imagining all the world would share his new, high fervor of hers. Instinctively she stiffened. Jake perceived it and hunched his shoulder, looking in her face.

"Indeed, Miss Bryce! So we're bound to be a martyr, are we? All right! Then we'll hop to it. But listen to me, Helena, your's not to turn up your nose at life. Do you understand? You're not to imagine things are finished for you. That's a fatal error. Because they're not! I'm telling you!"

She drew a long, sighing breath and closed her eyes.

Then he took her hands. His mood sobered. "Do you think you must kill your heart to let your spirit live, Chickie? Must you be as grim as this about it?"

Dreams Are Gone

"It's not that I'm grim, Jake. But I haven't the dreams I used to have. They're all gone. So I've got to have some purpose to take their place, I don't want to keep thinking of myself. I mean to set the future sneak on unconsidered. If I'm just plunged in work things won't seem so barren. . . ."

She opened her heart thus to Jake, not knowing that she let him see its hunger, its young worship of love. And that love to her was even yet and would always be the beauty of life and its fulfilment. A future robbed of this was a future meaningless and barren.

To Jake, then she was infinitely more desirable than she had ever been. For she was further from his path—and he felt it. He had known the stainless purity of her girlhood would one day reveal its heart of flame. And he had waited for the flame to kindle.

But now, awakened and self-aware, she brought her fires to an altar. They must burn themselves to ashes there. It was an alien shrine where Jake had never kneeled.

He still kept her hands in his. "So you mean to sweep away the soft and pleasant things? Are you trying to give me a gentle out, too, Helena, dear?"

"Oh, no! I'd be quite brokenhearted if you should disappear. And yet—"

"What—"

She was thinking of the rich, colorful life; the thronging pleasures that were Jake's, and now no longer hers. She said: "This way isn't your way, Mr. Jake, I guess."

"True enough, my dear." He slumped down comfortably, regarding her with a musing, indulgent smile. "True enough! But who can tell? Now I may take a notion to put an extra rose in that crown of yours!" He gave her a cosy nudge with his elbow. "I've had a premonition of it right along. God wot, an' ye man reform me yet!"

Hated to Spoil Him

She laughed: "I'd hate to spoil you, Jake. I really would."

"Now—we'll see. So that's that. Will you come to the Pierre's on your night off, Miss Bryce?"

"Oh—so soon? I don't want to—no—"

"Why, Chickie? You're back in the city. People know of it—"

She breathed help. "Do they? But I'd hate to dress all up and go walking down that aisle. I suppose they wouldn't be thinking of me; but just the same—"

"We could go into the gallery the first time, if you like—"

She gave him a queer, appealing look. "Would you want to be seen among all that crowd with me? It was different in New York. You didn't think, did you, Jake?"

She could see a straightening of the red, full lips. "Do you want to come, Helena? I have a box for every night. I'd like to take you."

In her mind's eye were faces peering at her. Most vivid among these, strangely enough, was the face of Ila Moore. She said, falteringly: "Not yet. I suppose I shouldn't care if people think me calloused or if they talk about me. I do, though. Oh, I'd hate to go."

She became nervous and rubbed her hands together. "You better not be bothering with me, Mr. Jake. You just better go your own way. After a while, when I work hard at this, it will be much easier."

"Why will it?"

She laughed. "Oh, you see, I'm to do so much good; I'm to forget myself so completely that pretty soon I'll know I don't count."

SOUP CANNING

WHERE is one plant that I am only sorry it is too far distant for a tour of inspection by our WNAC American Women's Club. It is a soup canning plant, and since Mohammed can't go to the mountain, I am going to try to bring the mountain to Mohammed today and tell you a little, briefly, about how our canned soups are made.

I know you would be impressed by the complete and perfect system of preparing soups on an enormous scale as carefully as for a single meal in your own home and with the same dainty cleanliness.

Only high grade materials in prime condition are used. Tomatoes are gathered right off the vines and made into soup the same day. Meat is all inspected by a U. S. government inspector, stationed right at the plant. In a sunlit experimental kitchen they try out in a practical way any suggestions to make the canned soup more tempting or more nourishing. Recipes published by the canning company are tested here by experts. Vermicelli and macaroni pastels used in these soups are American products of the highest class.

Fine Wines Used

For butter only the choicest grade obtainable is used, such as you would serve on your own table. Finest granulated sugar, unblued, best mock turtle and oxtail soups, imported from Spain and Madiera for mock turtle and Oftail soups, imported rice and vegetables received from nearby farms are just a few of the things that go to make up nourishing soups.

All apparatus and every utensil is regularly scalded and sterilized. Conveyors are porcelain lined. Kitchens are large, light and airy; a complete system of employees inspection, including medical inspection and the regular care of the hands and nails in a manicuring department maintained on the premises. Only adult labor is employed and personal neatness is compulsory. Every can of soup is sterilized. In fact, everything that is humanly possible is done to produce pure, rich, nourishing soups, in a wide variety.

A good soup is a satisfaction in itself. And it prepares the appetite agreeable for all that follow.

The soup should be appropriate to the occasion and the character of the meal, and of course it should be served promptly and hot. To serve it merely warm is unpardonable.

Grated Cheese

We are all familiar with the canned tomato soup I know, and make it with milk into a bisque. I don't think that many of you realize what an improvement a small quantity of cheese is grated over the surface of each plateful of the soup before serving. Noodles or rice previously cooked and added to the tomato soup before serving makes a hearty dish. Served either hot or cold with whipped cream in bouillon cups is an attractive method of using tomato soup, and pea soup may be served in the same way.

Don't think of soup only as a hot dish. You can enjoy the same nourishing qualities by using soups chilled or jellied.

Following varieties are excellent, served cold: Tomato bouillon, consomme, julienne, printanier. When used cold these soups should not be diluted and should be kept on ice over night. You know how many delightful Summer dishes can be made with aspic jelly. But you also probably know how much trouble it is to make the real aspic. By using consomme or bouillon with celatine a crystal clear aspic can be made with practically no labor, and used as the base for many kinds of jelly in which meat, lobster, vegetables or chicken may be molded.

Savory Aspic

Mix 2 cups consomme, ½ cup vinegar, 2 celery stalks, cut crosswise, 3 large stoned olives, chopped coarse, 6 small gherkins, chopped coarse, 1 cup nut meats, all together and pour into ornamental small moulds and allow to harden. Unmould on lettuce leaves, and serve as salad with mayonnaise dressing, or use as garnish to cold meats.

Tomato Aspic With Cucumber Filling

One can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon celery salt, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon onion juice, or scant teaspoon onion salt, 2 rounding tablespoons powdered gelatine, rings of green peppers. Dissolve the gelatine in 1 cup of cold water, and melt thoroughly over hot water. Add to the tomato soup enough water to make four level cups of the mixture (soup and water combined). Blend well, adding seasonings. Use large mould 1 quart size. Ornament base of mould with rings of green pepper cut very thin, and cover with aspic when it has become firm. Chill for several hours; unmould on to plate garnished with lettuce and fill cavity with the following:

Two cups diced cucumber, 2-3 cup thick mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon finely chopped capers, 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon anchovy paste, 2 tablespoons vinegar. Have cucumber very cold. Mix mayonnaise with other ingredients thoroughly, and add to cucumbers having no liquid. Fill aspic in mould, and allow some of the mixture to garnish the top. For luncheon six or eight small individual moulds may be used instead of 1 large one.

Chicken Jelly Loaf.

One can consomme, 2 rounding tablespoons granulated gelatine, 1 pound of cooked beef, slices of cold tongue, stuffed olives. Dissolve gelatine in ½ cup of water. Add 1½ cups of water, and melt carefully. Add consomme and allow to boil gradually harden. Cover bottom of a brick mould with jelly mixture and set in ice water to become firm. Decorate the bottom of the mould and the middle of the side with egg whites cut into strips and the centre of sliced rings. Set the decorations down with a little more of the aspic. When this is firm, lay in the chopped chicken, moistened with mayonnaise. Fill up with aspic to top of mould. When set, turn out on platter, garnish with overlapping slices of boiled tongue and stuffed olives.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"WHEN the heat you sat down to lunch one day after getting some of our misunderstandings straightened out," commanded Pat evenly. "It's not like you at all. The kind heart of you. You never get a chance while you're putting a man off of his guard to get around it and seeing kindly and understanding the corner of your mind. Our Alanna is in some trouble. I was after bringing her to you for the comforting one kind woman can give another, is it failing me you'd be?"

Then Virginia did the one thing to make me forget all the other things she'd said to me. She put her head down on Pat's shoulder and began crying quietly and piteously like a tired child. After a moment she lifted her head, pushed away the arms which held her so gently yet so strongly and said:

"Make me see what you want of me and I'll try not to fail you, Pat."

"'Tis like this dear," Pat went on as if he'd been sure from the first that I'd trust him to say whatever he thought it best to reveal.

"An anonymous letter was after brinering Anne the bitter tidings that her brother Neal was gone. Can you think how that hurt her, child, both?"

"It must have been terrible," agreed Virginia without venturing to look at Pat.

"Then Evvy Mason came to our Alanna with the story of what had been after overhearing from brutal she'd been following since that day at the dock. Said that they'd have to be looking for other employment now that the boy was done for. And Evvy saw them both after a tide of clothes she knew for Noah's. And then when Evvy took Anne to the sailor's boarding house where she'd seen and heard what was bound to break a sister's heart, Anne was after finding a handkerchief that had once been the lads. Is that heart-breaking or not, Virginia?"

"Then was enough severity in his tone to command Virginia's quick:

"I didn't guess how cruelly it came to Anne. How could I? I see now feat it was enough to unnerve her."

But already her mood of tenure yielding to Pat's wishes seemed to be fading and the usual Virginia-firmness seemed ready to evidence itself.

"'Tis not all," Pat went on inexorably. "Then when she and Alanna knew that the boy had been done away with she could get no understanding from Jim so she got none from you that night. 'Tis the Harrison pride that turns your hearts from where they should be and makes you wonder only what it is the world will be saying. Jim had no word of comfort for Anne save that it was the easiest way out to have the boy pass on without the world's knowing too much of how the sixty thousand dollars went with him.

And when it was the surest Anne was needing a man's strength, Jim answers the call of business and goes to Mexico instead of answering the call a woman's heart is sending, and staying by Anne. 'Tis little enough for Jim's sister to be comforting Anne now—'tis little enough for me to be thinking my wife will stand by. And how is it that you are answering that, Virginia Dalton?"

Virginia got to her feet and held out her hands:

"What ever I can do to make up for Jim's desertion you must know you can count on," she cried. "You must stay with us till he comes back. You needn't turn to strangers, Anne. And you mustn't let our world feel that you are alone."

"Then you believe!" I cried, moving forward to take Jennie's hands. "I know you couldn't go on thinking that Neal when you heard how he died at the hands of the gang which probably had a terrible time keeping him from coming back to give us a clue to them and what they had done with the money. I knew you'd see that he died guarding the money you once thought he stole."

"She's hysterical," whispered Virginia to Pat.

"Do you believe that?" I demanded.

"Never mind now, dear. Anne must get to bed," murmured Virginia as if she were comforting an unhappy child instead of a desperately unhappy woman.

"Do you still believe Neal a thief?" I repeated.

"That, dear, you see what you can do with your Alanna," said Virginia tolerantly.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Some time ago a friend and I had an argument regarding a wedding we saw. The bride had as her attendants two bridesmaids, a maid of honor and a flower girl. There was a great difference in height between the bridesmaids, so instead of having them walk in together she had them come in separately. My friend did not think it a good idea, but I maintain thought it a good arrangement, because in that way the difference in height did not show so plainly. What is your opinion.

BILLY.

I THINK that under the circumstances, she planned the "balancing" of her wedding picture very nicely.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I had planned to send a young high school girl a box of candy for her birthday, which is a month hence. However, the young lady in question has recently sent me a box of home-made candy. Would you kindly advise if it would be proper to send candy under the circumstances, and if not, what would be suitable to send?

PUZZLED.

Answer: Please let me tell you how refreshing your letter is, and it is refreshing, because it is so unusual to receive a question indicating such fine and sure taste. This is true, both of you and the young lady. Instead of sending her a box of candy, which might appear too much like an "exchange," I suggest that you send her a box of spring flowers or perhaps a book or an 1920 (Colonial) bouquet.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you be good enough to tell me whether it is the duty of the young man or lady to do the serving in a Chinese restaurant? It is the custom to serve the order, leave it in the center of the table, leaving the serving to the patrons. C. H. C.

THE gentleman, as host, usually does the serving in restaurant. However, it is more appropriate for the lady to serve tea. She can graciously suggest to the gentleman, "May I serve the tea?" or "Would you like to have me serve the tea?"

BOYS HELD FOR CAMBRIDGE BREAKS

Vacant Homes in Brattle Street Section Have Been Robbed

The looting of scores of unoccupied homes in the Brattle street section of Cambridge is believed near solution with the arrest of John Fratus, fourteen years old, Columbia street, and Joseph Tamasiunas, seventeen years old, of No. 42 Jefferson street, both of Cambridge.

The home of the youths, searched by the police, are said to have yielded booty taken from a number of houses in this exclusive section. It is believed the youths will give the names of their accomplices.

The two boys were arrested on the lawn in front of the home of Stoughton Hall at No. 111 Brattle street. When searched, the police say, they found flashlights on both. They were taken to police headquarters where they were booked on suspicion. After questioning the boys the inspectors started a search for others.

DOOR FORCED.

Among the homes entered was that of Henry J. Gould at No. 118 Brattle street, on August 12, where jewelry, a watch and linen were taken. The police say there was a large amount of silverware in the house, but the thieves overlooked it. On August 11 the home of Mrs. Eleanor Stetson at No. 124 Brattle street was entered.

She is away and the police have not been able to ascertain just what was taken. On the same day the residence of Dr. Edward R. Williams at No. 15 Lowell street, was broken into. An outside door was forced and the inner one sawed. In this case the police have been unable to check up on the extent of the theft.

SILVERWARE STOLEN.

On August 9 the home of Professor Charles H. C. Wright at No. 5 Lowell street was broken into. A small safe he had in his office was smashed with an axe. Professor Wright and his family are in Maine and the police have been unable to learn where.

On July 24 the house of William R. Arnold at No. 17 Francis avenue was broken into and considerable silverware taken. On August 1 the house of William S. Booth at No. 14 Chauncey street was entered and considerable clothing taken. The police have received numerous other complaints, and they believe that the list of breaks will be nearly doubled by the time residents return from their vacations and inspect their homes.

WRECKED AUTO JACKED UP TO RESCUE GIRL

Victim Near Death and Driver of Car Arrested as Drunk, Near Nantasket

Hull police had to jack up the wreckage of an automobile to extricate Miss Louise Lavelle, thirty years old, of No. 213 Forest street, South Weymouth.

The girl is reported dying at the Weymouth Hospital, and her companion, John Mashincha, who was driving the machine, is under arrest on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

The accident occurred on Warwick Hill, while the girl and her companion, who lives at the same address in South Weymouth, were returning from Nantasket.

Mashincha's machine sideswiped the automobile of Charles Madden of Water street, Brookline, and turned turtle.

Police say Mashincha was too intoxicated to help the girl from the wreckage. A squad of Hull police arrived on the scene, jacked up the car and removed the girl, at the same time arresting Mashincha, who they said will face a charge of manslaughter should his companion die.

COLLISION BLAME PUT ON STANDISH

The report of the commanding officer of the U. S. Shawmut, which was in collision a few days ago with the steamer Rose Standish of the Nantasket line, places the blame for the affair on the captain of the latter.

The commanding officer of the Shawmut states that his vessel was making only three knots on account of the dense fog, while the Standish was going at a rapid rate.

The Shawmut commander further states that he slowed down when he heard the Standish in the vicinity.

Big Navy Dirigible Will Join the Fleet for Cruise of Nearly Three Days

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 15.—The Shenandoah was all ready to leave today for manoeuvres off the New England coast with the Atlantic flight squadron of the United States Navy.

Official announcement said the Shenandoah would not leave here until afternoon in time for her to arrive 500 to 600 miles out at sea for operations with the fleet on Sunday.

She will cruise along Saturday night, but on Sunday several destroyers will put out to sea to be within 100 miles of the aircraft for communication.

The plans call for her return probably on Sunday night, arriving here here early Monday morning.

If the plans are carried out the flight will be the Shenandoah's longest non-stop cruise. In her longest previous flight, that to St. Louis, she stopped briefly at that city.

Commander Landsdowne will be in charge of the airship, but with Captain George Yarnell, acting chief of the Atlantic flight squadron, directing her manoeuvers with the navy ships.

MRS. GOETTLING ASKS HELP OF PUBLIC

MRS. GLADYS GOETTLING

SEEKS AID TO FIND HER STOLEN BABY

In desperation at the loss of her child, who was taken from her arms by her estranged husband and spirited away, Mrs. Gladys Goettling of Feltham today appealed for assistance in broadcasting her plea for help to the public.

Through detectives of the Wolfe Agency, Will Goettling, the young Harvard graduate and college professor husband of Mrs. Goettling, has been traced to a Providence hotel with the child, Elsie, five years old, but because of lack of funds the mother is now dependent on the sympathetic public to aid her in her search.

DRUGGED BY THE ORIENT.

Mrs. Goettling, who was a Cambridge girl, wooed and won by Goettling while he was a brilliant honor student at Harvard, tells for the first time the story of the change in her husband, which led her to come East with the child a short time before Goettling followed and took the girl.

"I hope that what I have to tell will show the people that my rights to little Elsie, who is my whole life now, are paramount to those of my husband, just as my story convinced Judge McCoul so that he granted me custody of my baby," said Mrs. Goettling.

"Study in Spain and professional work in the Orient changed my husband after our Cambridge romance. We lived in Japan for five years following our marriage in New York in 1917. Elsie was born there, and there the very blood of the Orient seemed to be transfused into Mr. Goettling's veins, for after our return, he spoke of bonds there which meant more to him than his wife.

"He complained that I gave too much of my time to the baby girl who is so dear to me and whom I may never see again. That was his excuse for neglecting me.

"I have obtained warrants against him in connection with his taking Elsie from my arms at my cousin's house in Dedham, and the authorities have promised me that wherever he is found, he will be brought back to this State.

ASKS PUBLIC TO AID.

"But what I hope is that some one will see and recognize him or the little girl, and notify me or the Hearst newspapers, either in Boston or in some of the Western cities where he is likely to have gone. He is professor of economics at the University of Oregon, in Eugene, Ore., and has friends in Seattle, Tacoma, San Francisco and other Coast cities.

"I fear he may have gone to Japan, for that was the threat he hurled back at me as he dashed away with Elsie. My detectives have traced the taxi driver whose cab he hired in Roxbury that night, and rode in to Providence. If he is still in the East, hiding, surely some one must have seen him, who can tell me where he is."

Mrs. Goettling is living at present with relatives at No. 37 Sanderson avenue, Dedham, and is under a doctor's care as a result of the loss of her child.

Out of what funds she has, Mrs. Goettling offers to pay a reward of $25 to anyone who will supply her with information which will lead to the recovery of little Elsie.

WOMAN IN FIGHT FOR HOME

Mrs. Byfield of Newton Will Go to Upper Courts, Being Denied Injunction

Mrs. Cecilia A. Byfield of No. 15 Eldridge street, Newton, who has fought for more than a year to prevent her home from being taken as the site of a new grammar school, lost another battle today.

Upon the report of Grant M. Palmer a special master, Judge Weed in Superior Court denied an injunction asked for by Mrs. Byfield, to restrain the city of Newton from dispossessing her.

TO KEEP FIGHTING.

Undismayed, Mrs. Byfield will keep on fighting, and the case may go to the Supreme Court on an appeal for final determination. At present the woman has pending in Middlesex Superior Court a petition for assessment of damages.

The house, a gift to Mrs. Byfield many years ago from her late husband, was taken by the city of Newton by right of eminent domain. The city awarded the woman damages of $7,700 but she claimed the house and land were worth nearer $40,000.

TWICE DEFEATED.

Early last year Mrs. Byfield filed a petition in the Supreme Court against the city of Newton, asking a writ of certiorari to quash proceedings taken to seize her property. The petition was denied by the court last December.

Mrs. Byfield then sought an injunction, and Master Palmer was appointed by Judge MacLeod of the Superior Court. Palmer ruled that the city of Newton had observed all requirements of law in ordering Mrs. Byfield to vacate her house.

WEST END BOY CAUGHT IN SUBWAY ESCALATOR

Five-year-old Frank Termilio, of No. 25 Pitts street, West End, was saved from serious injury by Patrolman Henry Doherty, who snatched the youngster from a moving escalator at Scollay Square subway station, after the lad's arm had become entangled in the belt.

It's going to be the biggest affair of its kind ever conducted by this newspaper. The carnival will be conducted regardless of weather conditions.

The American arranged tomorrow's outing to give the people a good time. Everybody is cordially invited to attend. Everything will be free. No admissions will be charged. Just wander over to the beautiful Charles River Esplanade, Mt. Vernon, and pick out any spot your fancy dictates and don't forget to take the Missus and the kiddies.

Doris MacCann.

Listen to the inspiring band concert furnished through the courtesy of Jas. B. Shea, head of the Boston Park and Recreation Department, and watch the six swimming and diving events for girls and women. The first event will start at 2 p. m.

HUNDRED ENTRANTS.

All it will cost will be your carfare, not even that much if you live within walking distance. Those who ride are advised to get off at Arlington street station in the Boylston street subway and walk along Arlington street to Beacon, then through to the Esplanade, one block from the junction of Beacon and Arlington.

Nearly 100 mermaids are entered in tomorrow's races and diving competition, including two of the best girl swimmers in the world, seventeen-year-old Gertrude Ederle of New York and fifteen-year-old Ethel McGary of New York.

Miss Ederle will defend her title as champion of the United States in the national half-mile and Miss McGary, who was second when Miss Ederle won the title last August at Indianapolis, will be one of her rivals.

FIRST HUB APPEARANCE.

This is the first time during the sixteen years the American has been conducting these carnivals that a national race has been one of the features of the program. It will also be the first appearance of Miss Ederle in Boston for an outdoor race.

SPEEDY NEW ENGLANDERS.

New England's speediest short distance swimmers, Misses Mollie and Helen McKittrick of Brookline, Miss Doris MacCann of Riverside, R. I., Miss Margaret Harrop of Pawtucket, R. I., Miss Ione Muir and Miss Mabel Mangley of Boston are expected to give good accounts of themselves in the dashes.

Thrilling races are predicted in all the events which include, besides the national half-mile, a quarter-mile, 100 yards handicap, 50 yards handicap, 50 yards for girls under fourteen years, and fancy diving from ten-foot board.

In addition to the fine prizes to be awarded, each of the first-place winners will be special guests of the management at tomorrow night's performance of "Little Jessie James," the clever musical comedy at the Wilbur Theatre. Two boxes have been placed at the disposal of the first-prize winners and their mothers by the theatre management.

G. A. R. WARMLY GREETED AT PLYMOUTH

The fifty-eighth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic which captured and held the city in its grasp during the entire week, came to a close today.

Tomorrow the thin army of blue will fold up its tents and depart to all corners of the United States from whence they came, probably never to convene here again.

Railroad terminals and steamboat wharves which a week ago were swamped with the "Boys of '61" will once again open their arms to receive the departing guests, who as a unit, express themselves as having the time of their lives while within the gates of the city.

Today 3,000 representatives of the G. A. R. and allied organizations boarded two special chartered steamers of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company and enjoyed a sea trip to historic Plymouth.

Arriving at Plymouth, almost at the exact spot where their forefathers landed, the members of the G. A. R. marched to Steven Field, where an old fashioned New England Clam Bake awaited them.

Previous to the clam bake were the exercises of the Sons of Veterans again over the departing guests, who stinged a patriotic flag rais ing. William L. Anderson, national patriotic instructor of the Sons of Veterans, was in charge of the ceremonies.

The flag and flagpole were gifts of the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary. Mayor Curley made the principal address and was the guest of honor at the clambake. Dr. Louis F. Arensberg of Pennsylvania, newly-elected Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., also spoke, as did the officers of the Sons of Veterans and the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary.

De Valera to Reply to Davis in Speech Today at Ennis

Dublin, Aug. 15.—"I'll deal with that today," De Valera replied when queried on the reference to Ireland in John W. Davis' acceptance speech for the Democratic nomination at Clarksburg, before his departure from Dublin for Ennis where the Sinn Fein chief will take up the speech at the point where it was interrupted on his arrest a year ago.

The latest developments in the Ulster boundary question will also figure prominently in De Valera's anniversary address.

DALLINGER'S ACTION SAVES SOCCER PLAYERS

Four famous soccer football players from Glasgow, Scotland, on their way to join the Boston Soccer Club of the American Soccer League, were held up on the Canadian border because they had no passports or visas, and probably would be there yet but for the intervention of Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger.

Appealed to by the directors of the Boston Club, Congressman Dallinger dispatched his secretary, Frank E. Bubna, to Canada with credentials. Mr. Bubna obtained the required passports in Ottawa and also the visas and escorted the worried players over the border and to Boston.

The players are William Patterson, John Ballantyne, Alexander McNab and Thomas McMillan with Manager J. A. Muirhead. McNab is a particularly well known soccer player, having represented Scotland internationally in several contests.

AMERICAN LEGION BACKS DEFENCE DAY

Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—Wholehearted co-operation of the American Legion with the War Department and civic and patriotic organizations in the observance of national defence test day on September 12, is pledged by National Commander John R. Quinn of the legion in a letter to Secretary Weeks, made public at the national headquarters of the legion here.

MATHEW DEAN, NOTED HORSE FANCIER, DIES

Huntington, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Matthew Dean, a native of Stamford, Ct., who went to New York City sixty-nine years ago and there became a successful bull dealer, financier and horse fancier, died today at the age of eighty-six. He was the owner of several of the most noted speed makers on the tracks of the metropolis a generation ago.

PUTNAM LOSS MAY GROW

Proofs of Claims Expected to Reveal Further Juggling by Gilpatric

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The doors of the First National Bank of Putnam, closed after a run which followed the attempt at suicide by the cashier, State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, were opened today by the receiver, George W. Coffin, but only for the receipt of payments due the bank.

The receiver stood by the statement previously given out that he knew nothing concerning the word of National Bank Examiner N. S. Bean that the bank's resources were so badly impaired that its business was wrecked.

The receiver was busy furnishing himself with the conditions which involve a loss of more than $250,000 in negotiable securities and in funds advanced on straw loans. Just as soon as possible, depositors, who had approximately $1,500,000 in the bank, in addition to those who had entrusted their funds to the bank for safe keeping, will be called upon to file proof of their claims.

SUSPECT MORE LOSSES.

Proofs are expected to develop additional losses. Bank Examiner Bean has said that additional liabilities are developing from day to day.

The federal officials have been working on five general lines of inquiry:

(1) How much money is missing?

(2) How was it taken?

(3) Why did Gilpatric embezzle the funds of his bank and his friends?

(4) What did he do with the quarter of a million dollars or more, of which comparatively little trace has been found?

(5) When did the peculations begin?

These questions, so far as the answers are known, stand this way:

1—Gilpatric's admission of embezzlement probably covers $262,000 already established and other losses on straw loans and negotiable securities, the amount of which is still to be determined; with the status of trust funds in his charge still in doubt.

2—He was said to take the money because he robbed the bank of which he was cashier, a one-man institution.

3—Why he took the money is a mystery.

4—What he did with it similarly is a mystery unless it was lost in some of his private speculations.

5—Developments have indicated that irregularities were being practiced by Gilpatric seventeen months ago; how much beyond that no one knows.

STILL FREE MAN.

Gilpatric was still nominally the State treasurer of Connecticut and cashier of the First National Bank and a free man today. His resignation from the State office has been prepared but not signed because of his condition. His brother, Walter Gilpatric, said today that there seemed no need for him to resign as cashier because he was "practically out now."

The Federal warrant charging embezzlement of $100,000 has not been served because of his condition, and it is believed by Federal authorities that hospital precautions are sufficient to prevent another attempt at suicide.

BAN GIRL BATHERS FROM WALKING PUBLIC ROADS

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—Following complaints from Summer residents in the neighborhood of Fort Washington, J. B. Stevenson, detective, visited the banks of the Wissahickon Creek in that section and warned girl bathers in bathing suits not to appear on the highway in such apparel.

Complaints made to District Attorney Renninger are that fair bathers walked the highways scantily clad and that members of camping parties, similarly clad, visited stores in the neighborhood to make purchases.

BERLENBACH AND HAMBONE READY FOR BELL IN BIG BOUT

EXPECT K.O. IN TUSSLE TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

PAUL BERLENBACH, the sensational New York middleweight, who has knocked out thirty of the thirty-two opponents he has faced in the professional ring, and the mighty Hambone Kelly of South Boston, who has smashed thirty-six rivals out of the pugilistic picture, are eagerly waiting for the sound of the gong which will send them into action in their ten-round bout at the Suffolk A. A. show at Braves Field tonight.

It might well be termed "The Battle of the Knockout Kings."

With Berlenbach and Hambone both in the best of condition, there isn't a chance of the tussle going the distance. It should end with a spectacular knockout.

Paul Berlenbach

Hambone is a heavier puncher than Paul, the Paralyzer. He hits more of a Ketchel kick behind his big mitts. Every ounce of energy in his huge body is back of his haymaker when it starts skyrocketing in the direction of the enemy. If one of Hambone's blows crashes against Berlenbach's jaw, the latter will be tipped over. They don't stand up after they are decked by one of the heavy shots hurled by the South Boston citizen.

* * *

BERLENBACH does not hit as soundly as Hambone, but he whangs out with greater frequency. This writer has seen Berlenbach in several of his New York bouts. He delivers punches much like but lots quicker from a muscular guy. He is perpetual motion itself once the bell sounds for the opening round. He is determined to finish his man with his attack. Punches fly through the air much like rain falls from the sky during a thunderstorm. He does not let up in the Berlenbach attack. It keeps pounding, pounding all the time until his rival sinks to the floor.

THE rival ring men will each weigh close to 160 pounds at ringside. Both boys are in fine physical condition. They have been doing hard work at Jim Doherty's Gym, while Hambone finished his work at Kelly & Hayes' Gym.

* * *

JOHNNY WILSON will be at the ringside tonight. The former middleweight champion, who recently stopped Jack Malone, has announced he is prepared to tackle the victor of tonight's quarrel.

* * *

JIM MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight who has been winning steadily, will appear in the semi-final of eight rounds. Noldo Flanagan of Malden will be his opponent. Flanagan has had considerable ring experience than Maloney while right-hand hurler and better will have to display all his sock ing power to win.

Another fast-eight will find Eddie Devine of the South End pitted against Bobby Dyson of New Bedford, former New England lightweight champion. Sammy Fuller of the North End and Eddie Polo of Watertown, Me., are billed for another eight-session contest.

Johnny Vacca of Newton and Young Hanlon of Cambridge will open the show with a four-round bout.

Jack Conway Picks Berlenbach to Win Over Hambone

Jack Conway, holder of the world's record for picking winners, hands out the following "dope" on tonight's Braves Field show:

"Berlenbach or Hambone? Which of these famous punchers do YOU believe will get over the big sock?

"When punchers meet, the youth scoring first is often liable to grab the victory. We are picking Berlenbach to win, which will probably cause many fans to disagree with us, for opinion on the probable result of tonight's bout is divided.

"For the semi-final, Maloney is our choice over Flanagan."

Jack has picked 92 winners out of a possible 106 this year.

PIRATES LOOM UP AS GIANTS' BIG RIVALS

By LES CONKLIN.

New York, Aug. 14.—After riding roughshod over the Braves, the Giants, the Dodgers and the Phillies on their Eastern trip, the Pittsburgh Pirates loom today as the team the Giants will have to beat out to win their fourth straight pennant.

The Giants may thank their lucky stars and Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's pitching luminary, that the Pirates were stopped at all. In turning in his eighteenth victory of the season, the Dodger crack allowed Pittsburgh only four hits and checked their winning spurt.

The Pirates had won eleven out of twelve games—four straight from the Braves, three out of four from the Giants and three from Brooklyn —when Manager Robinson threw Vance into the breach. Pittsburgh knew defeat was almost inevitable, as Dazzy had trimmed them nine times in as many starts.

The brightest stars for the Pirates on their successful road trip were Emil Yde, who ran his string of victories up to eight, and Rabbit Maranville, who fielded and batted in sensational fashion.

McGraw considers the Pirates a stronger club than the Cubs. He has said all along that he feared Pittsburg more than any other team in the league.

The experience of the Pirates over the New Yorkers this season is in marked contrast to last year, when the Giants won out because of their ability to defeat their leading rivals when pressed for the lead.

PLANS FOR LIGHT SWIM SUSPENDED

Plans are being made by the members of the L. St. Swimming Club for a long distance swimming race to take the place of the Light swim that has been temporarily abandoned.

They have decided to hold a six-mile race Sunday, August 31, from a point off Spectacle Island to Carson Beach, Dorchester, where the city of Boston has erected a new bathing pavilion and playground.

Mayor James M. Curley has donated three prizes. One of these is a silver cup which will be known as the "Mayor Curley Cup."

Entries for the swim may be sent to Fred Ahern, 40 Dorset road, Hyde Park, or to Jim Wise at 155 Stuart street, Boston.

Fuhr Sent to San Antonio in Exchange for Winter

Pitcher Winter of the San Antonio, Tex., club will be here either Sunday or Monday to take his turn on the box for the Red Sox. Owner Bob Quinn of the Fenway aggregation announced last night that he had put through a deal for the Southern star.

In the games in which he has played this season Winter has acquitted himself in a creditable manner. He won 13 and lost 10. His fine work on the mound last season demonstrated real class with Saginaw of the Michigan-Ontario League.

Oscar Fuhr, the Red Sox southpaw, will leave today to get more experience with the San Antonio team. He goes from here to Fort Worth, Tex., where he will join the Lone Star State nine. Owner Quinn has let him out on option.

FAST WHIPPETS TO SHOW AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—At the dog show tomorrow will run a large field of professional whippets, which will appear in the American Derby next month. The number of entries of these dogs which give the most exciting sport in dogdom, will force the running of five heats. It is the first time in many years that whippets have been run in Newport, and never has there been such a notable list. The entrants, several entering three dogs, are James E. Deuser, Boston; Bayard Warren, Boston; James Galligan, Lawrence; M. Dunlavey, New York; P. S. (Jack) Davies, Westfield, N. J.; Alexander Laddie, West Ferry, Long Island; Stewart Donaldson, Westbury, Long Island, and E. Coe Kerr, Westbury, secretary of the Whippet Club of America. Work is now in progress at Freebody Park, preparing the race track.

TOMMY MURPHY IS THROWN FROM SULKY

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Thomas W. Murphy, the Syracuse reinsman, narrowly escaped injury in the first heat of the 2-year-old pace, when Romana Direct stumbled and tipped the sulky right after the start. The sulky of Bostco passed over Murphy's body, but, outside of a shakeup, he was not injured and drove his horse the rest of the day.

The entry of Rene LaCoste of France and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York in the mixed doubles was also received.

* * *

Salome Brandsoltz, Buffalo, N. Y., crack breaststroke champion, won the Niagara A. A. U. 220-yard women's breast-stroke title, clipping a full second from the record. The race was a sensational affair, with Alice Backus forcing the local star at all stages.

YALE TO ERECT NEW ICE ARENA

New Haven, Aug. 15.—Yale is going to have a new Winter sports auditorium to cost in the neighborhood of $500,000, it is announced. It will take the place of the ice arena which was destroyed by fire in June last, doing $1,000,000 damage.

Harry B. Walker, acting for Edgerton, promised the new athletic structure, which will be located on the site of the old arena and which will be the largest building of this kind in New England.

R. H. WHITE NINE WINS ANOTHER TITLE

The R. H. White team won its fourth successive championship in the Retail League by defeating Gilchrist nine, 18-2, at Columbus Park, South Boston. This victory gives R. H. White permanent possession of the silver trophy given to the team winning the title three consecutive years.

A crowd of 2,000 fans saw the White heavy hitters knock Sawyer out of the box for fifteen runs in the first two innings. Bolliger, the White captain, whacked out four hits in the same number of times at bat. Sopka, the White southpaw had an easy time, allowing but four hits. Mike Clancy's home run gave the crowd a thrill, as did Jimmie Vaughn's fielding at third base.

New York, Aug. 15.—Luis Angel Firpo left his training camp at Saratoga today and visited Tex Rickard and signed a formal contract for his match with Harry Wills at Boyle's Thirty Acres September 11.

The "Wild Bull" tipped the scales at 225 pounds, but expects to weigh in at 218 when he enters the ring against the negro.

For sparring partners Firpo will call Pat Delaney, who went 15 rounds with Wills last Spring and recently stared the limit with Jack Renault; Joe Stoessel, former amateur champion; Jack Thompson and John Lester Johnson, negro boxers.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

When I walk into a store for a cotton shirt or a silk shirt no particular brand springs into my mind. No manufacturer of cotton shirts or silk shirts has succeeded in impressing upon me that his product is the best in America. When I go into a store to buy Summer underwear I immediately think of B. V. D's, but if I want Winter underwear I am at sea, for no manufacturer of heavy-nitted underwear has been able to get his goods into my consciousness as being the only ones to think of buying.

I don't know who makes the best cotton or the best silk socks. I have seen certain brands of "hosiery" advertised very favorably, but I haven't been educated sufficiently to know whether the makers cater to men or not, for many ads seem to be addressed to women.

No manufacturer of neckties stands out in my mind as the best in the country.

This comment is inspired by a little article in a British publication for business men, which gives the names of six large advertisers in the United States, with the amount each spends in a year and adds:

"As you will notice, four out of the six are selling soap. What would happen, I wonder, if they were to make cotton goods and lace and steel and machinery were to become as enterprising as the men who make soap?"

Before writing this column I had a talk with an advertising man. He warned me not to write anything on the subject because it "has dealt with problems that the layman couldn't possibly fathom.

I talked also with a woman and she remarked, "Apparently you don't read women's publications."

* * *

I don't. She should you so I have to read women's publications in order to find out which are the best goods for us to buy. Not a mention is that the publishers and editors of women's publications have been extremely skilful in broadcasting the idea that our women folk do nearly all our spending for us. They have succeeded in attracting an enormous volume of advertising, a lot of it from what I gather, dealing with things for men.

* * *

Are manufacturers and merchants justified in thinking that a large majority of real men's publications? Are there not an enormous number of men who have difficulty in finding time to read the daily newspapers and periodicals of special interest to them in a business way?

* * *

Frankly, I believe that as a male consumer I have been ignorant as to what neglected me.

* * *

Here is another thought. When I spent some time recently in New England and talked at length with members of Know England Associated business men, I had it dinned into my ears that although New England could make finer cotton than the South could make, New England's business was falling off heartbreakingly.

Well, now, how much have New England cotton manufacturers done to increase their business through advertising to consumers trade marked cotton goods?

If some New England manufacturer makes the finest cotton shirtings or cotton shirts, he has not reached me with convincing newspaper of this fact.

* * *

When I go to buy a hat several makes come into my mind, because I have had them extolled to me by text and picture in the newspapers year after year. I know the merits claimed for suits a number of different automobiles, because they, too, have been widely advertised to me. I always used to ask for the same brand of collars, until recently I switched, for no reason that I can see, to an unadvertised brand. When I go to buy a suit of clothes—I am one of the multitude who don't think ready-made good enough—I have in mind the claims made and the illustrations put out by two or three sartorial advertisers. I know something, also, about different makes of shoes and do not feel lost when I have to buy a pair.

A good many edibles and drink-ables and "foodstuffs" have also been made familiar to me.

* * *

Yes, the art of advertising has been developed far. But I cannot feel that the whole ground has been covered. Wonders remain to be done yet, are being well catered to, but I don't think the possibilities of enormous buyers have been adequately exploited.

* * *

The manufacturer who wants to sell me the things I use must not expect me to buy women's publications in order to find the advertisements. He can catch my eye and my money any day and every day in the week in the daily newspapers and in the business periodicals I read.

And I rather think there are a lot more like me.

DEMAND IS MODERATE IN COPPER MARKET

Copper demand is moderate at 13¾ to 13¾ cents. Some holders are asking fully 13¾ cents, delivered at usual eastern points, but trading at that level is comparatively small.

European buyers continue their interest in the market, although transactions are not specially impressive. Foreign quotations for three months futures are at the high est in over three months.

Exports of copper from New York alone since August 1 average more than a million pounds a day.

WORLD'S COAL TRADE VERY QUIET

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

While the world's coal trade is still very quiet, there is a better feeling in coal trade circles in this country. Despite dullness of late, the Boston-owned coalers have been doing well, both in business and on the list of the stock exchanges.

The opening of the new National Wages Agreement between the British coal miners and the coal owners, it is expected, will insure peace in the industry for the next twelve months, according to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York through its English information service.

EXTRA COST.

The agreement imposes upon coal owners extra cost, which in the present state of trade, constitutes a serious handicap. Already mines have been closed, with the result that several thousand workmen are idle. The general tendency seems to be for owners to cease operations in unremunerative workings.

In one of the cases where collieries have been closed, the owners have stipulated that a condition of their reopening is double what it was now. To this system the miners are strongly opposed. Therefore, this question may become a vital one point at issue between employers and employed.

Optimistic reports prevail in the coal trade both in Great Britain and the Scotland shipments from New Castle for the first five months as compared with 1923 show an increase of 1,833,000 tons as compared with 3,703,000 tons in the corresponding period in 1923. In June, exports of 7,000,000 tons were undertaken, which, although the output was a 2,500,000 ton increase over May, left the shipments to Germany decreased, and also shipments to Scandinavia and the Mediterranean.

BUNKERING TRADE

On the other hand shipments to Holland, Italy, Spain, Canada and the Argentine as well as Australia, showed increases. The bunkering trade—that is the supplying of ships with coal—showed a substantial increase. In the first five months of 1924 2,721,221 vessels were supplied with coal, having a registered ton nage of 3,784,344 tons. In the first five months 2,697,445 vessels were bunkered, having a ton nage of 3,698,754 tons.

The total output for the first half of 1924 of the coal mines of Great Britain was 130,661,000 tons, comparing with 140,570,000 tons in 1923 and 123,754,000 for the first half of 1922.

HARLEM RAIL JUMPS 17 POINTS

Prices advanced with outside buying, largely stimulated by the optimistic tenor of the market letters of large commission houses.

Bear operations caused brisk gains among specialties.

Railroads were rather sluggish except for a rise of 3 points in Frisco preferred and a jump of 17 points to 125¾ a new high, in New York & Harlem.

American Bank Note, Railway Steel Spring, General Asphalt preferred, American Smelting, Continental Can, Stock Trade, International Business Machines, Diamond Match and Daniel Boone sold 2 or more points above Thursday's close. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

Federal Mining & Smelting preferred, American Smelting, Continental Can, Frisco preferred, Central Leather preferred and Liggett & Myers issues all sold at new highs for the year.

Regular quarterly Boston & Albany dividend of 2½ per cent will be payable September 30 to stock of record August 30.

Rails and Industrials Are Leaders in Big Bond Market

Railroad and industrial bonds divided attention in New York trading, in which prices generally displayed a firm trend.

Belief that a satisfactory capital readjustment of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway would be worked out within a short time continued to stimulate Frisco bonds. The income 6s rallied 4 points from the top of the year at 74¾, with the adjustment 6s and prior lien 4s advancing fractionally.

Wheeling & Lake Erie 4s repeated their recent highs at 73¾. Rising prices for coppers and sugars increased the demand for bonds of these companies.

Magma Copper convertible 7s established a new all-time high at 109¾. Foreign obligations again marked time awaiting a break in the inter-allied conference deadlock on evacuation of the Ruhr.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN TRADE IN BOSTON

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review, in this week's issue, will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

"There has been a noticeable improvement in most lines the last few weeks, and a more hopeful feeling is now quite general. Consumption of wool is lower and volume of sales have decreased, but many mills are still coming into the market for supplies. Prices are firm.

"The goods market is quite a little improved, with quotations on lightweight fabrics and dress goods higher. Increased prices for cotton goods and the subsequent activity in primary markets have found mills unwilling to make forward contracts, even at substantial increases.

"Mill quotations have been well maintained and forward purchases of fine grades which will never be redeemed, said Mr. Blumenthal, and it is his intention to expose all persons who engage in advertising and sell such worthless fabrics. The lawyer claimed several prominent nationally known foreign exchange bankers have encouraged him to expose foreign exchange bucketeers.

Series of dubious purchases from small investments were being circulated when buyers of last year, who paid $5 for 1,000,000 marks of German war bonds cashed in at prevailing rate of $1,750, rise of $150 in past week.

Prussian war loans worth $400 per 1,000,000 marks, three months ago, now worth 1,600,000 times original sum and other German securities rise in proportion.

NEWTON TAX rate is $27.40, increase of 60 cents. Cambridge $32.30, advance of 70 cents.

STRENGTH of copper stocks has been an outstanding feature. This reflects increasing optimism of producers.

EX-GOV. W. T. COBB, J. C. Boyd and G. C. Wing, Jr., have been appointed receivers for Bath Iron Works, Ltd.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD favorable developments bearing on Consolidated Textile are pending.

CERTAIN FINANCIERS who have made holdings in the railroad and electric group are to embark on high grade tobacco issues.

STRENGTH OF leather stocks is due to belief leather business should show improvements from now on.

10 SHARES FOR 1 IS POWER & LIGHT PLAN

Directors of the American Power & Light Company have voted to split the common stock, giving the holder of a $100 par value share ten shares of no par value stock. This is in accordance with the plan the company said, to get the wide distribution of holdings that the company desires. They pointed out that when the shares reach $250, as they did recently, they were unwieldy.

WARNS AGAINST SPECULATION IN WAR BONDS

A warning against speculation in foreign war loan bonds and with unscrupulous exchange dealers, has been issued by Daniel W. Blumenthal, a member of the law firm of Maurice B. & Daniel W. Blumenthal, in New York.

Thousands of persons have been victimized by fraudulent purchases of foreign bonds which will never be redeemed, said Mr. Blumenthal, and it is his intention to expose all persons who engage in advertising and sell such worthless bonds. The lawyer claimed several prominent nationally known foreign exchange bankers have encouraged him to expose foreign exchange bucketeers.

Series of dubious purchases from small investments were being circulated when buyers of last year, who paid $5 for 1,000,000 marks of German war bonds cashed in at prevailing rate of $1,750, rise of $150 in past week.

Prussian war loans worth $400 per 1,000,000 marks, three months ago, now worth 1,600,000 times original sum and other German securities rise in proportion.

A U. S. Labor Party?

Not Yet Awhile. We're Too Mixed.

The really important question in this national campaign has nothing to do with the campaign itself.

Will an American Labor party come out of this campaign and out of the decision of the American Federation of Labor to support La Follette?

Labor has charge of the British Empire. A Socialist and Labor man controls France as Prime Minster. Italy is kept from Socialistic control by the one-man power of Mussolini.

Will a Labor party, sticking together, leave both the old parties and control the United States?

Answer: PROBABLY NOT.

The need in a strong party is homogeneity and ADHESIVENESS, which means otherwise the SAME KIND of people and a stick-together quality.

Italians, Englishmen, Frenchmen are of about the same kind and can form a party that will stick. No mixture there of Irish, German, Swedish, Russian, Polish and Italian.

Here we have a mixture of populations, not yet "melted" into one homogeneous mass. If labor got power, there would be half a dozen different nationalities, and, what would be worse for the party, several dozen bitter hatreds at work inside the party. It wouldn't last long if it ever got started. That's what makes this the world's safe CONSERVATIVE country for the rest of this century, anyhow.

Money at the top, representing intelligence, cunning self-denial, and sometimes law-breaking and determination, cares nothing about nationality, religion, or anything else except power. You never see one BIG DOLLAR fighting with another Big Dollar, and the dollar party is the powerful party. It won't be so forever, because the nation won't be forever one-half of one per cent. educated. The three R's don't mean an education.

And British Chivalry

Our British brothers seem unnecessarily excited about a picture of Lady Astor hung up in the House of Commons. It was put there to commemorate the first election of a WOMAN to the House. Some English gentlemen object because Lady Astor happens to be an AMERICAN woman.

Whether or not the picture will be allowed to stay and thus damage a poor brand of British pride has not been decided. Meanwhile the portrait is covered with a black cloth because some objecting gentleman marked up the picture with an offensive design of some kind.

Needless to say the average common Englishman won't object to Lady Astor's picture. She WAS the first woman elected to Parliament. Her husband's father, who took his American money to be spent in England, paid a good high price for the title that he got.

The seat in the Commons was won by an American girl from Virginia by sheer grit, showing English women how it isn't unusual for foreign blood to do important things in England.

Disraeli, who made Queen Victoria Empress of India, was a gentleman of Asiatic descent. He came from Jerusalem. The lady that he made Empress was more than three-quarters German.

William the Conqueror, who started modern English civilization, was pure Norman, and all sorts of foreigners made up the English fighting strength—Normans, Danes, Saxons.

England might as well give one American girl a chance at glory.

The Noble Cow

And Her Misused Calf

In this country are twenty-four million dairy cows, an increase of seventeen millions in the last fifty years. The cows produce in money two billion dollars a year. The important fact is that the amount could be doubled if all men fed and treated their cows as some unusually intelligent do.

The best cow gives four times as much milk as the average cow. There is no reason why the average cow shouldn't give twice what she gives now.

There is also no excuse for the slaughtering of millions of calves every year in their babyhood. Veal is undesirable food. NOT easily digested, lacking in strength.

Of course it would be Socialism, even bordering on anarchy, in the minds of some citizens, but why shouldn't an effort be made to raise some of the wasted calves on pasture lands belonging to the government?

Elimination of Texas tick, soon to be accomplished in Florida, and the development of all-year-around pastures there, would provide homes for millions of calves.

Some plan ought to be devised to save at least the calves of the big dairies. The poor little creatures are knocked on the head the moment they are born, taken from their mothers, that never see them, and thrown out on the refuse pile, as the law prevents their going to the butcher shop.

Cheap artificial food could be found for them, to bring them to the grass-eating stage. That would solve one food problem.

The German Republic

Of Hohenzollerns, Enough Is Plenty

The great demonstration in favor of a German Republic has amazed aristocrats that hoped to bring back the Hohenzollerns and their strutting lieutenants. The young people of Germany are with the Republic. The boy of twenty couldn't fight in the war, but he starved through the war, and has had all the Hohenzollern he wants.

A German Republic devoted to peace, and developing Germanic genius in a land of equality, would be worth all the war cost.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS

By HELEN ROWLAND

MY daughter, a man sorteth first with his illusions, then with his top-hair, then with his teeth—and last, with his pet follies.

Yet a woman may lose all of these, but not until she parteth with her VANITY.

For a man's vanity is as a rock which is embedded in his soul, but a woman's vanity is as the green ivy tree, which doth flourish and increaseth with the years.

Helen Rowland

And so, though her childhood be forgotten and her girlhood long past, still doth she delight to be called "girlie" and "coutie" and to be "babied" by him she loveth.

Though she hath parted with her waistline and her stylish-like slenderness hath become as the mountain range, still doth she answer to "little one" without blushing, and think of herself as a perfect thirty-six.

Though her hair turneth from gold to silver and from silver back to Titian, still doth she delight to shake it out before the looking glass, saying, "Yes, I am a perfect blonde."

Though her sight increaseth dimly and she taketh to goggles in secret, still doth she squint and flirt with pleasure when a man remarketh on "the radiance in her eyes."

Though her face resembleth last year's rose or a valued antique, still doth she totter upon French-heeled slippers and how warmly doth the stranger will observe her "beautiful instep."

And though she be eight—and cynical, still doth she believe a man's words when he vows that he loveth her.

And she is NOT pleased if he assureth her that it is for "qualities of the SOUL" that he loveth her!

Go to, my Daughter! Else ye give thanks for woman's vanity—and her saving vice; and when the last spark of her vanity is lost, then doth the light go out of her heart.

Verily, verily, wise is he that remembereth a woman's vanity to keep it sacred.

For a man may distrust a woman's faith and shatter her hopes and wreck her illusions, and yet hold her devotion.

But he that hitteth her VANITY striketh a death blow at her love!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OUT over the roofs of the town
I gaze, as far as the eye can see, till the streets are lost in the soft gray haze floating in from the mist-veiled sea. There are houses fair as an artist's dream of all that a house should be, where the shaded lights through the windows gleam with a signal harmony. There are splendid places of wealth and pride and the bars on the windows there tell a silent tale of sons inside that are guarded with jealous care. There are dingy roofs where the poor may stay in the humbler streets of the town; dim, low roofs that are dull and gray, battered and tumble-down. And I see gay roofs on the bungalows that the honeymoon couples share, roofs as bright as the blues of each climbing vine creeping up to the broad eaves above. Far away stretch the hometops of gray and green and the lesser tops of red and brown till they grow small as a garden's myriad shoots, and those roofs of the busy town that I gaze over sometimes at the eyes folks live under the houses there, at the joys they take and the pain they give and the burdens that all must share. For I know that each house-top, high or low, shelters part of man's climbing race, from the low, gay roof of the bungalow to the rich man's splendid place. There are tales in the making from day to day under glowing and gray roof tree, so I love to look out on their garden gay as it stretches away to the sea.

Pleads for Her Boys

Helping Hand Editor:

Could some of your kind readers help me out? I have three children, two boys, 1 and 8, who take sizes 10 and 12 shoes, and a baby 4 months old. They need blouses and pants. If you would help the boys out I would be thankful. I need shoes, but my boys come first. My size shoes is 3½.

Home for Aged Woman

Helping Hand Editor:

I can offer a home to an aged woman or young girl wishing a good home and small salary, where there are two children to care for. It will be just like home and person treated like our own.

Girls Need Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I wish some kind person will help me to get some clothes for my little girls, ages from 11½ to 9. My husband has been out of work for eight months and it is impossible to find clothes for my five children. Anything would be accepted with thanks.

MRS. W. J. L.

Would Help Herself

Editor Helping Hand:

I received your check for one dollar, kindness of, Mrs. C. Y. H., Salem. I have written to her my thanks. But, dear editor, I cannot go on much longer; hunger and want at my age, 62, must soon impair my health. You see I don't want to feel so dependent on good, kind people for support. I want to be helped to support myself, and the kindness and help that you have given me and the kindness from people unknown to me have brought to me a desire to get on, and if you can find someone able and willing to give me a Summer suit of clothes, size 42; a shirt or two, size 15 collar, and a few other things, you can put me on the road to a comeback—self supporting. I then will be able to make a respectable appearance, and if you get the clothes for me, I surely will get a job.

Needs Treatment

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there a kind reader who knows where a boy almost eighteen and hard of hearing could get a job working for a doctor or in some hospital to do any kind of work for treatment and board? Would like to work out of town, but otherwise will be acceptable. Hoping some kind person knows of such an opportunity and will let me know.

RICHARD.

Conscience Money

Helping Hand Editor:

Conscience money. Please put it to some good use. (No name.)

There is no better way to ease one's conscience than by giving to those in need. We thank you very much for this generous donation.

In Need of Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I wish some of your dear readers had some children's clothes to give me. My little ones need clothes badly. Girl 8 years, boy 5 years, and baby 2 years.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON FICTION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MEN will always love fiction just as children love stories.

Fiction is an escape from the commonplace.

It brings to the mind the sense of adventure.

In fiction the mind is freed from its conventions, each man becomes the hero and does the impossible.

Fiction, to be entertaining, must preserve sufficient probability and, at the same time, must bring in the impossible and make it seem plausible.

In fiction there is roundness and completeness which life lacks. In fiction they are married and live happily ever after in spite of the fact that we know that when they are married their troubles only begin.

Our love of completeness finds its food only in fiction as in actual life there is no completeness but the solution of one problem is simply the creation of others.

In a sense it is more difficult to create fiction that shall be entertaining than it is to write history. For there must be an effort of the creative imagination and the plot as completed must gratify instincts which life does not.

The bones, or framework, of a story is its plot, and unless there be sufficient plot the characters created cannot stand out alone, but must collapse. For this reason, fiction that is true to life, absolutely, is uninteresting. There must be plot enough to carry all this. Hence the plot is the thing.

The moral of any fiction must be contained in itself. It all depends upon the taste that it left in your mouth after reading it.

This is the ultimate effect of all stories. Their men are worth while and their story is good, not only in proportion as your interest is sustained, but in proportion as your whole telling has stimulated life.

Some affect to admire true stories. The story that is absolutely true to life is never interesting, for what we desire is that life shall be untrue and that the impossible shall be real. Therefore the story which deals frankly with impossibilities, but makes them probable, is more interesting.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON GARDEN TELESCOPES

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I WISH to call attention to an instrument for the popularization of astronomical observation called "the garden telescope." It is not of this particular instrument alone that I would speak, but also of the idea on which it is based, which is capable of utilization and extension by anyone who may desire to try his hand at the making of telescopes and their mounting for what may be called home and family use.

The garden telescope, which is a Vermont invention, due to Russell W. Porter, of Springfield, in that State, may be mounted on the pedestal of a sun-dial, and may also serve, like a sun-dial, for noting sun, or true local, time, which the attached circle indicates to the nearest minute.

Most persons on seeing one of these little instruments would not imagine that it was a telescope at all. It has no tube, but instead of a tube a crooked bronze arm, which carries at its outer end the eye-piece, together with a small right-angled glass prism, the purpose of which is to receive, and turn into the eye-piece, the converging beam of light rays reflected from a parabolic mirror at the base of the arm. At the focus of this beam the image of the object looked at is formed. The eye-piece magnifies the image as in any telescope.

The small dimensions of the instrument are sometimes surprising. The mirror is six inches in diameter, which is quite large enough for most ordinary views of celestial objects, such as the sun, moon, principal planets with their satellites, star groups, and many double stars; but the focal length is only about two feet, although eye-pieces are provided giving magnifications of 25, 50 and 100 diameters.

The mirror consists of silvered glass, and it goes without saying that the making of it, though it may be called "amateur work," involves—as amateur work often does—very great skill.

The optical plan of the instrument is that of a Newtonian telescope, and our cut shows only the essential details, without any belonging to the mounting. The star rays coming down past the supporting arm and the prism are concentrated by the mirror upon the prism and thence reflected into the eye-piece. The observer looks, thanks to the prism, in a direction at right-angles to that of the object.

The details of the mounting with the graduated circles, etc., need not be described here, since my only purpose is to point out how easy it is and at no great expense for anybody to have at his home, without an observatory, outdoors and always ready for use, a telescope far more powerful than the best that Galileo had with which to revolutionize astronomy and to change the ideas of the whole world concerning the nature and tae contents of the heavens.

A Queer Telescope

The elimination of the cumbersome tube, which formerly was always used with both reflecting and refracting telescopes is a feature, which is shown on a large scale with some of the great instruments at Mount Wilson.

If the rays that have been collected by the objectglass or the mirror are transmitted a long distance through the open air, they may be distorted by currents of differing density and temperature, but for small distances the liability of disturbance from this source is slight, and it may be that this was one of the reasons for making the focal length of the garden telescope too short.

Once-Overs

BE PURE OF HEART, FOR YOUR FACE MIRRORS YOUR THOUGHTS.

You have heard a lot of talk recently about reading people's faces and even their hands and you think it is all very silly—"don't believe in it at all," you assure yourself.

But, after trying out a few of your general expressions before a mirror, would you trust any man or any woman whose habitual expression is what yours is?

Merely to change the muscles and not change your heart to correspond with the expressions which you admire is to be veneer, not the real thing.

But change in thought and mind and heart, with good will toward all, is the remedy for the hard lines you seek to cover.

Change of heart is a real benefit to yourself under those circumstances.

Change of heart softens the lines, sweetens the bitterness which you have allowed to turn you from many who would be good friends if you would permit.

If you do not wish your face to tell how mean and wicked you can be, keep a constant rein on yourself, and check the mean and cruel impulses which are plainer than words in telling the truth about you to those who can look into your face and eyes and read the story there.
